ARTICLE XIII.

Emigrants may leave India for the Colonies to the East of the Cape of Good Hope at all times of the year.

For other Colonies they may leave only from the first of August to the fifteenth of March. This arrangement applies only to sailing vessels; vessels using steam-power may leave at any time of the year.

Every Emigrant sailing from India for the Antilles between the first of March and the fifteenth of September, shall receive at least one double blanket over and above the clothing usually allowed to him, and may make use of it so long as the vessel is outside of the Tropics.

ARTICLE XIV.

Every Emigrant vessel must carry an European Surgeon and an Interpreter.

The Captains of Emigrant vessels shall be bound to take charge of any despatch which may be delivered to them by the British Agent at the Port of embarkation for the British Consular Agent at the Port of destination and to deliver it to the Colonial Government immediately after his arrival.

ARTICLE XV.

In every vessel employed for the conveyance of Emigrants, subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, the Emigrants shall occupy, either between decks, or in cabins on the upper deck firmly secured and entirely covered in, a space devoted to their exclusive use. Such cabins and space between decks shall in every part have a height of not less than five feet and a half.

No compartment shall take more than one adult Emigrant for every cubic space of seventy-two feet in the Presidency of Bengal and at Chandernagore, and for every cubic space of sixty feet in other French Ports, and in the Presidencies of Bombay and Madras.

An Emigrant above the age of ten years shall count as an adult, and two children from one to ten years of age shall count as one adult.

A place shall be fitted up for a hospital in every Emigrant ship.

Women and children shall occupy compartments of the vessel distinct and separate from those of the men.

ARTICLE XVI.

Each shipment of Emigrants shall include a proportion of women equal to at least one-fourth of the number of men. After the expiration of three years, the numerical proportion of women shall be raised to one-third; after two years more, it shall be raised to one-half; and after a further period of two years, the proportion shall be the same as may be fixed for the British Colonies.

ARTICLE XVII.

The British Agents at the embarkation shall have, at all reasonable times, the right of access to every part of the ship which is appropriated to the use of Emigrants.

ARTICLE XVIII.

The Governors of the French establishments in India shall make such administrative regulations as may be necessary to ensure the complete execution of the preceding stipulations.

ARTICLE XIX.

On the arrival of an Emigrant ship in any French Colony, the Government shall cause to be transmitted to the British Consular Agent any despatches which it may have received for him, together with—

1. A nominal list of all labourers disembarked who are subjects of Her Britannic Majesty.

2. A list of the deaths or births which may have taken place during the voyage.

The Colonial Government shall take the necessary measures to enable the British Consular Agent to communicate with the Emigrants before their distribution in the Colony.

A copy of the "List of distribution" shall be delivered to the Consular Agent.

He shall be informed of all deaths and births which may occur during the period of engagement, as well as of all changes of employer, and of all departures on a return-passage.

Every fresh engagement, or act of renunciation of the right to a free return-passage, shall be communicated to the Consular Agent.

ARTICLE XX.

All Immigrants, being subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, shall, in the same manner as other subjects of the British Crown, and conformably to the ordinary rules of international law, enjoy, in the French Colonies, the right of claiming the assistance of the British Consular Agents; and no obstacle shall be opposed to the labourer's resorting to the Consular Agent and communicating with him; without prejudice, however, to the obligations arising out of his engagement.

ARTICLE XXI.

In the distribution of labourers no husband shall be separated from his wife, nor any father or mother from their children under fifteen years of age. No labourer shall be required to change his employer without his own consent, unless he be transferred to the Government, or to the person who has acquired the property on which he is employed.

Immigrants who may become permanently incapable of work, either by sickness or by any other cause beyond their own control, shall be sent back at the expense of the French Government, whatever time may still be wanting to entitle them to a free return-passage.

ARTICLE XXII.

All operations of immigration may be carried on in the French Colonies by French or British vessels without distinction.

British vessels which may engage in those operations shall be bound to conform to all the measures of Police, health, and equipment which may apply to French vessels.

ARTICLE XXIII.

The labour regulations of Martinique shall serve as the basis for all the regulations of the French Colonies into which Indian Emigrants, subjects of Her Britannic Majesty, may be introduced.

The French Government engages not to introduce into those regulations any modification, the result of which would be to place the said Indian subjects in an exceptional position, or to impose upon them conditions of labour more stringent than those prescribed by the said regulations.

ARTICLE XXIV.

The present Convention applies to emigration to the Colonies of Ré-union, Martinique, Guadeloupe and its dependencies, and Guiana.

It may hereafter be applied to immigration to other Colonies in which British Consular Agents shall be established.

ARTICLE XXV.

The provisions of the present Convention relative to the Indian subjects of Her Britannic Majesty shall apply to the Natives of every Indian State which is under the protection or political control of Her said Majesty, or of which the Government shall have acknowledged the supremacy of the British Crown.

ARTICLE XXVI.

The present Convention shall begin to take effect on the first of September 1861, and shall continue in full force for three years and a half. It shall remain in full force, if notice for its termination be not given in the course of the month of September of the third year, and then notice can be given only in the course of the month of September of each succeeding year.

In case of notice being given for its termination, it shall cease eighteen months afterwards.

Nevertheless the Governor General of British India in Council shall, in conformity with the Act of the 19th of September, 1856, relative to immigration to British Colonies, have the power to suspend at any time emigration to any one or more of the French Colonies, in the event of his having reason to believe that in any such Colony proper measures have not been taken for the protection of the emigrants immediately upon their arrival or during their residence therein, or for their safe return to India, or to provide a return-passage to India for any such emigrants at or about the time at which they are entitled to such return-passage.

In case, however, the power thus reserved to the Governor General of British India should at any time be exercised, the French Government shall have the right immediately to terminate the whole Convention, if they should think proper to do so.

But in the event of the determination of the present Convention, from whatever cause, the stipulations relative to Indian subjects of Her Britannic Majesty introduced into the French Colonies shall be maintained in force in favour of the said Indian subjects, until they shall either have been sent back to their own country, or have renounced their right to a return-passage to India.

ARTICLE XXVII.

The present Convention shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Paris in four weeks, or sooner if possible.

In witness whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the same, and have affixed thereto the seals of their arms.

Done at Paris, the 1st day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-one.

ADDITIONAL ARTICLE.

His Majesty the Emperor of the French having stated that, in consequence of the order which he gave long ago that no more African Emigrants should be introduced into the Island of Réunion, that Colony has, since last year, had to obtain labourers from India and China; and Her Britannic Majesty having by a Convention signed on the 25th of July 1860, between Her Majesty and His Majesty the Emperor of the French, authorized the Colony of Réunion to recruit six thousand labourers in her Indian possessions, it is agreed that the Convention of this date shall take effect forthwith, with regard to the said Colony of Réunion.

The present Additional Article shall have the same force and validity as if it were inserted, word for word, in the Convention signed this day. It shall be ratified, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at the same time as those of the Convention.

In witness whereof the respective Plenipotentiaries have signed the same, and have affixed thereto the seals of their arms.

Done at Paris, the 1st of July, 1861.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill forms part of the scheme for consolidating the Acts and regulations, the execution of which commenced in 1867, has since been steadily progressing, and is now being actively carried out. It consolidates the five Acts in which the law on the subject of cooly emigration is contained. The opportunity has been taken to improve, here and there, the wording and arrangement of that law; but no alteration has been made in its substance.

ACCOUNTS.

Fort William, the 30th December 1870.

No. 3334, dated 14th December 1870.

No. 4129.—RESOLUTION.—The Governor General in Council is satisfied that it is desirable to enlarge the powers and responsibility of the Governments of Presidencies and Provinces in respect to the public expenditure in some of the civil departments.

2. Under the present system, these Governments have little liberty and but few motives for economy in their expenditure: it lies with the Government of India to control the growth of charges, to meet which it has to raise the revenue. The local Governments are deeply interested in the welfare of the people confided to their care; and not knowing the requirements of other parts of the country, or of the empire as a whole, they are liable, in their anxiety for administrative progress, to allow too little weight to fiscal considerations. On the other hand, the Supreme Government, as responsible for the general financial safety, is obliged to reject many demands in themselves deserving of all encouragement, and is not always able to distribute satisfactorily the resources actually available.

3. Thus it happens that the Supreme and Local Governments regard from different points of view measures involving expenditure; and the division of responsibility being ill-defined, there occur conflicts of opinion injurious to the public service. In order to avoid these conflicts, it is expedient that, as far as possible, the obligation to find the funds necessary for administrative improvements should rest upon the authority whose immediate duty it is to devise such measures.

4. This is the more important, because existing imperial resources will not suffice for the growing wants of the country. Writing of roads and communications in October 1869, the Government of India in the Public Works Department stated that it had for some years—

"been satisfied that to attempt to provide and maintain all the roads required for the intercommunications of so vast a territory from the ordinary revenues would be to enter on an altogether impracticable task. The matter," it was added, "has been before this Government on several occasions since 1862, and the view now taken of it has already received, in general terms, the approval of the Secretary of State. It is only by a judicious system of local assessment and control that what is needed can be accomplished."

This is not less true of some other departments of the administration.

5. The Supreme Government is not in a position to understand fully local requirements, nor has it the knowledge necessary for the successful development of local resources. Each province has special wants of its own, and may have means for supplying them which could not be appropriated for imperial purposes. A tax adapted to the circumstances of one part of the country may be distasteful or inapplicable elsewhere; and everywhere rates may be proper for provincial or local purposes which could not be taken for the imperial revenue.

6. These principles are now generally recognized, and important steps have been already taken to develop provincial resources. The Government of Bombay has, for some years, raised a considerable revenue for local purposes. Important measures to the same intent are under the consideration of the Legislative Council of Madras. The Government of Bengal is maturing a scheme, in accordance with the decision of the Secretary of State, for the levy of a rate for local objects in the Lower Provinces of Bengal. In all the other Provinces of India provincial revenues have long been raised, and measures for increasing them are now being devised.

7. These measures have been promoted chiefly to provide for urgent administrative wants, the means for which are not otherwise forthcoming. It is inexpedient that the funds so raised should be intercepted, to any considerable extent, for objects the cost of which has been hitherto defrayed from the general revenues, even though such objects be of an admittedly local character. Moreover, the Governor General in Council is not desirous that the demands on the people for provincial purposes should be indefinitely or too rapidly increased.

8. It would have been satisfactory had His Excellency in Council been able to propose the enlargement of the power and responsibility of the local Governments without charging upon local resources any part of the existing imperial expenditure. This cannot be done: but it has been determined to make as small a demand upon these resources as possible. At the same time it should be remembered that the relief of the imperial finances has been a principal object in the discussion of such measures on former occasions.

9. The income-tax of six pies in the rupee imposed for the current year was never intended to be permanent, and the Governor General in Council has already announced a resolution not to renew the tax for next year at this high rate unless some unforeseen contingency compels him to do so.

10. It was thought at first that the income-tax could not be reduced to the desired extent without imposing upon local resources almost as large a sum as might be given up. Anticipations made so long before the beginning of the financial year must be uncertain; but, as far as the Governor General in Council can now judge, it will be possible next year to give substantial relief from existing taxation without the substitution of any considerable new burden.

11. The Government of India is accordingly pleased to make over to the Governments, under certain conditions to be presently set forth, the following departments of the administration in which they may be supposed to take special interest; and to grant permanently, from the imperial revenue, for these services, the sum of £4,688,711, being less by £330,801 only than the assignments made for the same services in 1870-71:—

JAILS.	PRINTING.
REGISTRATION.	ROADS.
POLICE.	MISCELLANEOUS PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.
EDUCATION.	CIVIL BUILDINGS.
MEDICAL SERVICES (except "Medical Establishments"*).

A statement (A) is appended, explanatory of the method by which the assignments to be thus made have been calculated. This statement shows the estimated receipts and charges under the first six of these heads during the current year, the "Police" charges in Bombay and the North-Western Provinces having been slightly reduced by the final adjustments necessary in consequence of the Government becoming liable for the superannuation allowances of the force.

12. The figures entered for "Roads," "Civil Buildings," and "Miscellaneous Public Improvements," are the grants for this year, exclusive of the sum of £135,679 reserved for certain works detailed in Appendix B, which will not in future be a charge upon local Governments, but will be separately provided for by the Supreme Government. The portion of this £135,679 reserved in each province bears the same proportion to the grant made to the province for the current year that the expenditure in the province, upon the reserved works, has borne, during the last five years, to the whole expenditure under these three heads.

13. To the £1,168,701 thus assigned for "Works," £327,236 has been added for "Establishments" and "Tools and Plant," being the proportion of the current year's grants for these purposes which appertains to that share of the total grants for "Works" of all kinds which is transferred. This £327,236 has been distributed among the Presidencies and Provinces in the proportions in which the larger sum of £1,168,701 has been distributed. The Governments will henceforth provide themselves with "Tools and Plant" without the intervention of the Government of India. The future arrangements in regard to "Establishments" cannot be settled without detailed correspondence. For the year 1871-72, the Supreme Government will continue to provide "Establishments" as heretofore, and each Presidency or Province must bear a share of the cost in the proportion which the estimated outlay upon "Works" from provincial funds† bears to the total estimated outlay upon "Works," ordinary and extraordinary, imperial and provincial, in all India. It is to be clearly understood that local Governments must maintain in efficient repair existing lines of through communication, such as the trunk roads, unless authorized by the Supreme Government to abandon them.

14. The actual permanent imperial assignments for "Provincial Services" will be then as follows; all receipts heretofore credited in connection with these services being given up to the Provinces in which they accrue:—

Oudh	206,948
Central Provinces	261,263
Burmah	275,332
Bengal	1,108,592
North-Western Provinces	640,792
Punjab	516,221
Madras	739,488
Bombay	880,075
	£4,688,711‡

* By "Medical Establishments" here is meant the first subdivision of the Grant 22, MEDICAL SERVICES, as hitherto made.

† "Provincial Funds" here does not include existing "Local Funds."

‡ If it be found, when the accounts of the year 1870-71 are made up, that the actual expenditure during that year for the official postage of the services affected exceeds the amount of the grants for that purpose, then the several assignments will be, once for all, increased by the difference.

15. In calculating these allotments, £350,000 has been deducted rateably from the grants made to the several Provinces in 1870-71. But it has been thought expedient to remit the deduction (£19,199) which would thus fall upon British Burmah, the circumstances of that Province being exceptional. No additional deduction has been made from the other Provinces in consequence of this concession to Burmah.

16. These assignments will not be classified in the Financial Statement and in the Imperial estimates and accounts, but will appear under a single new head, "Provincial Services." The Imperial revenue will continue to bear such charges for the absentee and superannuation allowances of officers on establishments now transferred as have hitherto appeared in the Home accounts, or under other heads in the Indian accounts. But it would be inconvenient and difficult to maintain any distinction between these officers and officers who are paid from other local funds, or who may be added hereafter for "Provincial Services." Questions of some importance regarding this and other like details will have to be settled hereafter.

17. Unless some fiscal misfortune, such as a heavy loss in the opium revenue, or national disaster, such as war or severe famine, occurs, the Governor General in Council will maintain for the future the assignments for "Provincial Services" at the amounts now fixed. They will not, in any case, be reduced without previous consultation with the Governments.

18. For the coming year the Provincial Service estimates should be immediately prepared upon the basis of these assignments, which may be distributed at the discretion of the Governments among the several departments for which they will now be responsible. Any portion of the assignment made to any Province that may be unspent at the end of the year will not lapse to the imperial revenue, but will remain at the disposal of the local Government. The estimates and accounts of these Governments should therefore open and close with balances brought and carried forward. They should show not only the receipts and charges of the new "Provincial Services," but also the income and expenditure of all existing local funds; it being understood of course that the Governments are not relieved by this Resolution from any legal or equitable obligation which may govern the appropriation of any particular local fund. It is essential that the estimates and accounts of all the Presidencies and Provinces should be uniform, and the precise forms to be used will be settled by the Supreme Government. The imperial financial year must be the provincial year of account.

19. Each Local Government will publish its own yearly estimates and accounts in the local Gazette, together with a financial exposition (which should, where possible, be made before the local Legislative Council) analogous to that annually made in the Legislative Council of the Governor General. The several estimates and accounts will be compiled, and a general statement for all India published as a supplement to the imperial estimates and accounts.

20. In preparing its estimates for the coming year, each Government will have to consider, without delay, how any deficiency in the ways and means for its "Provincial Services" can most conveniently be supplied.

21. The financial control which is thus entrusted to the Local Governments is to be exercised subject to the following conditions:*—

* It must be understood that these conditions are prescribed, for the present, tentatively, and that they are subject to revision as experience may require.

I.—Without the previous sanction of the Government of India,—

(1) No appointment is to be created with a salary of more than Rs. 250 a month; and no addition is to be made to the pay and allowances of any officer if they exceed, or would, after the addition, exceed, Rs. 250 a month:

(2) No class or grade of officers is to be created or abolished, and the pay of no class or grade of officers is to be raised:

(3) No addition is to be made to the pay or allowances of any individual, or class of officers, that would lead to increase in the emoluments of any public servants doing duty in the same province, whose pay and allowances are charged to the imperial revenues. The Government of India reserves to itself the right to forbid alterations in rates of pay or allowances, which, in its opinion, would produce inconvenience in other provinces;

(4) No moneys are to be removed from the public treasuries for investment:

(5) No services now rendered to other departments at the charge of the departments made over to the control of the local Governments are to be diminished, and no services now rendered to these departments at the charge of other departments are to be increased.

II.—The Rules of the Supreme Government in respect to leave of absence and absentee deputation, and superannuation allowances, are to be observed.

III.—Returns, accounts, and estimates, are to be submitted to the Supreme Government in such forms, and at such times, as may be prescribed.

22. The Governor General in Council is fully aware that this resolution will effect a wide change in Indian administration. It has been adopted after long and careful consideration, in the hope that it will be received by the Governments in the spirit in which it is promulgated. The Governor General in Council believes that it will produce greater care and economy, that it will import an element of certainty into the fiscal system which has hitherto been absent, and that it will lead to more harmony in action and feeling between the Supreme and Provincial Governments than has heretofore prevailed.

23. But beyond all this, there is a greater and wider object in view. Local interest, supervision, and care, are necessary to success in the management of funds devoted to Education, Sanitation, Medical Charity, and Local Public Works. The operation of this Resolution in its full meaning and integrity will afford opportunities for the development of self-government, for strengthening municipal institutions, and for the association of Natives and Europeans, to a greater extent than heretofore, in the administration of affairs.

24. The Governor General in Council is aware of the difficulties attending the practical adoption of these principles. But they are not insurmountable. Disappointments and partial failures may occur; but the object in view being the instruction of many peoples and races in a good system of administration, His Excellency in Council is fully convinced that the local Governments and all their subordinates will enlist the active assistance, or, at all events, the sympathy, of many classes who have hitherto taken little or no part in the work of social and material advancement.

25. The additional powers of financial control which will now be assumed by the Governments must be accompanied by a corresponding increase of administrative responsibility. It is the desire of the Governor General in Council to confine the interference of the Supreme Government in India in the administration of the "Provincial Services" to what is necessary for the discharge of that responsibility which the Viceroy in Council owes to the Queen and her responsible advisers, and for the purpose of securing adherence to the financial conditions now prescribed, and to the general policy of the Government of India.

26. The procedure of the Departments of "Registration," "Jails," and "Police," is to a large extent governed by law. No law exists upon the subject of "Education," but the policy of the Government has been declared and prescribed in dispatches* from the Secretary of State, the authority of which, and of the rules sanctioned by the Government of India regarding "grants-in-aid" and other matters of general principle, is not affected by this Resolution.

* Such as No. 49, dated 19th July 1854.
" 4, " 7th April 1859.
" 1, " 23rd Jan. 1864.
" 5, " 12th May 1870.

27. Subject to these general restrictions, the Governments will henceforth enjoy full liberty in the expenditure of the funds appropriated to "Provincial Services." It must, however, be understood that in thus divesting himself of control, the Governor General in Council divests himself also to a large extent of his former responsibility. If responsibility for expenditure is retained, control cannot be renounced.

28. The Governor General in Council delegates to the local Governments this large additional share of administrative power without hesitation or distrust, believing that it will be exercised with wisdom, liberality, and prudence.

1. The students must be of respectable parentage,—Brahmans, Baidyas, Kayastha or Navashaks.

2. Students must be received into the institution on the written applications of their friends or guardians.

3. Students will be of two classes,—in-students who board in the premises, and out-students who live with their friends and do not board in the institution.

4. In-students will receive stipends of 12 Rs. month, and will reside in the school premises.

5. In-students, who are widows, will be allowed to bring their children with them, if under ten years of age.

6. In-students will receive a moderate allowance once a year, to enable them to visit their friends.

7. In-students will not be permitted to leave the premises, except at such times and under such conditions as their friends may declare in writing.

8. Out-students, who are widows, will receive stipends of 10 Rs a month; and if they live in localities traversed by the school conveyances, will be daily brought to school and taken back to their homes at the expense of the school.

9. While any stipends are not taken up by widows, married women will be considered eligible to receive half stipends as out-students, provided they are placed in the school with the consent of the husbands and belong to bonâ fide poor families. Candidates coming from the country will have the preference over those from the city.

10. The half stipends to married women will be granted from year to year, and be subject to the provision that they will be resumed at the close of any year if required for students who are widows.

Report on the state of the Salt Market during the Second Quarter of 1870-71.

From R. L. MANGLES, ESQ., Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Revenue Department,—(No. 676C, dated the 12th December 1870.)

I AM directed by the Board of Revenue to submit the following report on the state of the salt market for the second quarter of 1870-71, comprising the months of July, August, and September last.

2. The quantity of Government salt sold at the Presidency under wholesale rowannahs amounted to maunds 3,455, as shewn in the margin, giving a monthly average of maunds 1,151 against maunds 3,335 in the preceding quarter. The total sales, which, as in the previous seven quarters, were confined to the Hidgellee stocks, show a decrease of maunds 6,550 as compared with those in the preceding quarter.

July	1870 ...	Mds.	1,510
August	„ ...	„	825
September	„ ...	„	1,120

3. The sales of Government salt at Pooree amounted to maunds 2,260, against maunds 8,300 in the preceding quarter and maunds 72,818 in the corresponding quarter of 1869-70. The decrease in the sales during the last four quarters, as compared with previous sales, is attributable, as already explained, to the exhaustion of the stocks of Kurkutch salt at the several aurungs. The Pungah salt now in store at Pooree, as stated before, is not in great demand there, owing to supplies of Kurkutch, which is less expensive, being available in the market. Arrangements are still in progress for the immediate disposal of the whole storage.

4. The quantities of excise salt sold in Cuttack, Balasore, Pooree, and the 24-Pergunnahs, from the stocks of the different seasons, and the quantities which remained in store at the close of the quarter, are shewn in the following statement:—

It will be seen from the above that the total clearances of excise salt during the quarter amounted to maunds 92,443-2, against maunds 30,037-11 in the previous quarter, and maunds 38,210 in the corresponding quarter of 1869-70. There was no manufacture during the quarter, the season for manufacturing salt having closed with June. The large quantity shewn as surplus, amounting to maunds 103,160-7, is the difference between the estimate made of the manufacture at the aurungs and the quantity stored in the golahs after weighment.

5. The subjoined statement shews, comparatively, the total importations into the port of Calcutta and the total clearances of sea-imported salt during the quarter and the corresponding quarter of the two preceding years :—

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the corresponding temperatures given in column 17. For stations of above 500 feet elevation, the reduction is made by Dippe's tables as given in Guyot's "Meteorological and Physical Tables."

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17, on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahr. for every 350 feet.

Wind Direction.—The mean wind direction and its comparative prevalence are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the half-month. The latter is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The mean direction is calculated in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the half-month which shall shew the isobaric and isothermal lines, and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

Money not to be borrowed except under this Act.

10. No person administering any Local or Municipal Fund who is not authorized by some special law to borrow money on the security of such Fund shall borrow money on such security otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Government of India has recognized the importance of facilitating to the utmost the prosecution of local works of improvement, and has come to the conclusion that a system somewhat similar to that established under the English Public Works Loan Acts may be introduced in India with much advantage. The Government would make advances, to be repaid with interest in a term of years, for works of certain classes, the public utility of which was duly ascertained. A certain maximum sum would be placed at the command of the Local Governments, to be applied in making such advances, on which they would operate, the power of extending the advances to new objects being limited by the obligation not to exceed that sum, so that when the whole authorized sum was once advanced, the earlier loans must be paid off before fresh ones could be made.

It has been ruled, however, more than once recently, that it is not desirable to give the local bodies who deal with local or municipal revenues independent powers of borrowing, and that, when for any special reason it may be expedient that funds should be borrowed for local objects, the Government itself should lend the money. This course has been followed in several cases.

But in most of these cases there is no means of giving the Government a legal lien on the revenues on the security of which the loans are made. A municipal body or a person administering local revenues has no power to do more than deal with the revenue as it is received, and cannot give any valid pledge that the income of future years shall be applied in a particular way, unless under express legislative authority, which certainly has no existence in the case of most of the Local Funds in India. When the last law regarding municipalities in the North-Western Provinces, Act VI. of 1868, was passed, the power of borrowing was deliberately rejected by the Government of India and the Legislative Council.

The present Bill has therefore been prepared in the Public Works Department in order to provide for the making of advances of public money for works of public utility to local or municipal bodies, obtaining at the same time valid security for their repayment from the funds at the disposal of such bodies.

If the Engineer concur with the Collector, he shall pass orders accordingly; if he differ, the case shall be reported to the Commissioner, whose decision shall be final. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE attention of Government was drawn in 1868 to the injuries which had been sustained in the district of the 24-Pergunnahs from inundation, owing to certain obstructions which had been erected in a drainage channel, and the removal of which the magistrate stated could not be effected until the requisite legal formalities had been complied with; admitting at the same time that the removal of the obstructions was necessary for the public good, and it was considered that the existing law was not sufficiently stringent to meet such cases.

The opinion of qualified local officers was called for as to the points on which the present Embankment Act requires amendment, and in giving effect to those amendments it is deemed expedient to consolidate the existing laws for the acquisition of land, for the construction of embankments, and for their maintenance.

The objects sought to be attained by the modifications proposed in the existing laws are to extend the provisions of the Act so as to include within their operation the drainage of tracts of country which may be intimately connected with embankments; to include under the definition of "embankments" works which, though not embankments, are strictly accessories to embankments and without which it is impossible to secure the stability of the latter; to provide for the removal of impediments to drainage, and for the construction of works necessary to the drainage as well as to the protection from inundation of any land; to give greater facilities of action in cases when delay may be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property; to provide compensation for injury or loss to individuals caused by such action; to secure the more effective maintenance of private embankments, and to determine more equitably the mode in which the cost therefor incurred should be recoverable from the parties liable to pay the same, or from those benefited by such works; and lastly, to secure by more stringent penalties, embankments, and drainage works from wilful injury.

To render the Act more complete, the provisions of the existing laws for the acquisition of land required for works of the description specified in the Act have been incorporated therewith.

No. 1 of 1871.

A Bill to facilitate the construction of Works of Public Utility from Local and Municipal Funds.

Whereas it is expedient to facilitate the construction of works of public utility from Local and Municipal Funds by means of advances to be made by the Government: It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Preamble.

Short title.

2. This Act shall extend to all parts of British India.

Extent of Act.

3. In this Act—

Advances from public revenues for carrying out works of public utility.

Fund, he may make an application to the Local Government for such advance, and the Local Government, after such enquiry as in each case it may think desirable, if satisfied that such advance should be made, may authorize it to be made, subject to the provisions hereinafter contained.

Governor General to make rules.

5. The Governor General in Council shall from time to time make rules for regulating all matters relating to the making of such advances, and the said rules shall provide, amongst other things, for the following;

1. The determination of the Local and Municipal Funds to which this Act shall apply:

2. The works for which advances may be made under this Act:

3. The manner of making applications for advances:

4. The manner of conducting enquiries relative to applications:

5. The manner of recording the conditions on which an advance is made:

6. The manner and time of making advances:

7. The inspection of works carried out under this Act:

8. The instalments by which advances shall be repaid, the interest to be charged on advances and the manner and time of repaying advances and discharging the interest charged on the same:

9. The determination of the charges that may be made in respect of any advance, against the Fund from which such advance is repayable, on account of the share of the costs of the Government in giving effect to this Act:

10. The manner of keeping and auditing the accounts of the expenditure of advances, of the repayment of the same, and of the discharge of the interest thereon:

11. The amount that may from time to time be applied by the Local Government from the public revenues for the purpose of making advances.

The said rules shall be published in the Gazette of India, and when so published all Courts shall take judicial notice of them.

Obligation to repay advances.

6. The person from time to time administering any Fund shall duly repay and discharge such advance to the Government from such Fund, in accordance with the conditions on which it was made, and in preference to all other claims against such Fund.

If advance be not repaid, Local Government may appoint officer to keep Fund.

7. If at any time an advance be not repaid and discharged in accordance with the conditions on which it was made, the Local Government may appoint an officer to take possession of and receive the whole or any specified part of the Fund in the place of the person for the time being administering the same, and thereupon and so long as such officer shall remain so appointed and to the extent directed by the Local Government, the said person shall cease to have any authority to keep or receive the said Fund, and the receipt of such officer shall be a sufficient discharge for all demands payable to such Fund.

The Local Government may direct such officer to repay and discharge the advance as aforesaid from any amount so received by him. All payments made in that behalf by such officer shall be deemed to be a first charge against the said Fund, and the residue only of any amount so received, after making all such payments, shall be repaid to the person administering the said Fund.

Local Government may direct officer to administer Fund.

8. If at any time an advance be not repaid and discharged, according to the conditions on which it was made, and if such advance has been made subject to the condition that an additional rate shall be levied to provide for the due repayment and discharge of the advance, and if the person administering the Fund fails to levy such rate in the manner required under the said rules, the Local Government may order him to do all things needful for the levy of the said rate, and may appoint an officer to levy and receive the same.

An officer so appointed shall, so far as he shall be authorized so to do by the Local Government, and for the purpose of levying and receiving such rate, exercise all or any of the powers commonly so exercised by the person administering the Fund, and in the place of such person; and so long as such officer remains so appointed and to the extent of the authority given to the said officer by the Local Government, such person shall cease to exercise the said powers.

An additional rate levied and received under this section shall be dealt with as though it had been received under the section next preceding.

No advance to exceed six times income of Fund.

9. No advance under this Act shall exceed six times the gross income of the Fund received during the year next preceding that in which the advance is authorized by the Local Government.

Money not to be borrowed except under this Act.

10. No person administering any Local or Municipal Fund who is not authorized by some special law to borrow money on the security of such Fund shall borrow money on such security otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The Government of India has recognized the importance of facilitating to the utmost the prosecution of local works of improvement, and has come to the conclusion that a system somewhat similar to that established under the English Public Works Loan Acts may be introduced in India with much advantage. The Government would make advances, to be repaid with interest in a term of years, for works of certain classes, the public utility of which was duly ascertained. A certain maximum sum would be placed at the command of the Local Governments, to be applied in making such advances, on which they would operate, the power of extending the advances to new objects being limited by the obligation not to exceed that sum, so that, when the whole authorized sum was once advanced, the earlier loans must be paid off before fresh ones could be made.

It has been ruled, however, more than once recently, that it is not desirable to give the local bodies who deal with local or municipal revenues independent powers of borrowing, and that, when for any special reason it may be expedient that funds should be borrowed for local objects, the Government itself should lend the money. This course has been followed in several cases.

But in most of these cases there is no means of giving the Government a legal lien on the revenues on the security of which the loans are made. A municipal body or a person administering local revenues has no power to do more than deal with the revenue as it is received, and cannot give any valid pledge that the income of future years shall be applied in a particular way, unless under express legislative authority, which certainly has no existence in the case of most of the Local Funds in India. When the last law regarding municipalities in the North-Western Provinces, Act VI of 1868, was passed, the power of borrowing was deliberately rejected by the Government of India and the Legislative Council.

The present Bill has therefore been prepared in the Public Works Department in order to provide for the making of advances of public money for works of public utility to local or municipal bodies, obtaining at the same time valid security for their repayment from the funds at the disposal of such bodies.

R. STRACHEY.

21st March 1870.

WHITLEY STOKES,
Secy. to the Govt. of India.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 13th January 1871, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to make their report thereon in two months:—

No. 2 OF 1871.

A Bill to amend the law relating to Customs Duties.

Preamble. WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to the duties of Customs on goods imported and exported by sea; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Goods not prohibited to be imported into or used in British India, composed of any article liable to duty as a part or ingredient thereof, shall be chargeable with the full duty payable on such article, or if composed of more than one article liable to duty, then with the full duty payable on the article charged with the highest rate of duty.

Saving Clause. 4. Nothing herein contained affects Act No. XX of 1867, or authorises—

(1) the levy of import duties on articles (other than salt, opium and spirits) imported into one port in British India from another:

(2) the levy of export duties on articles exported from one port in British India to another:

(3) the levy of export duties on articles exported by sea to any place other than a foreign port in India, when such articles have been imported by sea into British India:

(4) the export of opium not protected by a pass.

Construction of section 27 of Act VI of 1863. 5. Section twenty-seven of the Consolidated Customs Act shall be construed as if, for the words "for which a specific value has not been fixed by the Local Government with the sanction of the Governor General of India in Council," the following words were substituted (that is to say) "for which a specific value is not fixed by the Indian Customs Duties' Act, 1871;" but, save as aforesaid, nothing herein contained shall be construed to affect the provisions of the Consolidated Customs Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The primary object of this Bill is to consolidate the eight Acts in which the law relating to the customs-duties leviable on goods (including salt and opium) imported or exported by sea, is now inconveniently contained.

At the same time the following amendments have been made in the substance of the law.

A section (3) has been introduced to provide for the case of goods of which a part or ingredient is liable to duty. This provision is taken from 23 & 24 Vic., c. 110.

Asphalte is introduced into schedule A, and charged with a duty of seven and a half per cent. on a value of twenty rupees per ton.

Articles intended for the permanent way of railways are admitted at one per cent. ad valorem.

The Bill also incorporates the recent orders of the Government of India in the Financial Department respecting (a) betel-nut, (b) kerosine and other oils, (c) timber and woods, and (d) the exemption from export-duties of articles which have been imported by sea.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

This Bill has two primary objects, one, to consolidate the law relating to Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue Agents, the other, to amend that law so far as it relates to agreements between certain legal practitioners and their clients.

In Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, the Panjáb and Oudh, the law on the subject is contained in three Acts (XX of 1865, XXIX of 1865 and IX of 1866): in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay it is contained in Acts I of 1846, XX of 1853, Madras Regulation XIV of 1816, and Bombay Regulation II of 1827, chapter VI; in the Panjáb, Act IV of 1866 (sections ten, eleven, twelve, forty-four and fifty-one) contains some special provisions as to Pleaders in the Chief Court and their fees; and in British Burma the Recorders' Courts Act XXI of 1863 (sections sixteen, seventeen and eighteen) contains similar provisions. The Central Provinces and all British Burma outside the local limits of the Recorders' jurisdiction appear to be devoid of any law on the subject.

The present Bill consolidates and extends to the whole of British India such of the provisions of Acts XX of 1865 and XXIX of 1865 as appear to be generally applicable to the country.

With regard to agreements for remuneration between clients and their legal advisers, Act XX of 1865, section thirty-nine, permits such agreements to be made, and declares that they shall not be enforced otherwise than by regular suit. This provision, which has been held to place such agreements on the same footing as an ordinary contract between private persons, has, for obvious reasons, not worked satisfactorily. A flagrant instance of the evil of the present law is furnished by the recent case of Nuthoo Lall v. Budree Pershad, 1 Allahabad Reports 1; and though the High Court there held that it was not the duty of the lower Courts to decree (as they had done), on mere proof of the contract, the enforcement of an extortionate bargain between a pleader and his client, the legislature should not leave so important a rule to depend on the decision of a single High Court. The Bill repeals the section in question, and replaces it by a set of provisions modelled on the recent English Statute 33 & 34 Vic., Cap. 28 (to amend the law relating to the remuneration of Attorneys and Solicitors), sections four, six, seven, eight, nine, eleven, thirteen and fourteen.

Section thirty-three of the Bill declares that pleaders, &c., may make agreements as to their remuneration, but that the amount agreed on shall not be paid until the agreement has been examined and allowed by an officer of the High Court or of the District Court. The Court is empowered either to reduce the amount or to order the agreement to be cancelled. The agreement (section thirty-four) will exclude further claims in respect of the business therein referred to. Provisions relieving the pleader, &c., from liability for negligence will be void (section thirty-five). No suits are to be brought on such agreements, but on petition of either party the Court may enforce or set it aside (section thirty-six). The Bill then declares void (a) purchases by a pleader of his client's interest in future suits or in unsatisfied decrees, and (b) agreements by which the pleader stipulates for payment only in the event of success. Provision is made (section thirty-eight) for the case of the pleader's death or incapacity, and the client is empowered (section thirty-nine) to change his pleader notwithstanding such agreement.

The other novel provisions of the Bill are only two.

At the recommendation of the Government of Bengal, all Mukhtárs are restored to the privilege of appearing, pleading and acting in Criminal Courts, which they formerly enjoyed under Act XX of 1865, and Mukhtárs heretofore admitted and enrolled in Lower Bengal as Revenue Agents are empowered (section seven) to appear and act in suits in Munsifs' Courts under Bengal Act VIII of 1869 (to amend the procedure in suits between landlord and tenant).

Penalties are provided (section forty-five) for Advocates, Pleaders and Mukhtárs removed or suspended by a High Court who practise after such removal or during such suspension.

The application shall contain such particulars of the land to be drained or irrigated as may enable the Engineer to judge of the advantage which may be derived from the work, and shall declare, as regards an embankment maintained at the expense of the State, whether the applicant is willing to bear such part, not exceeding half, of the cost thereof as may be determined by Government, and as regards any other public embankment whether the applicant is willing to defray the whole or such part of the cost incident to and attendant on the proposed work as may be determined as aforesaid.

XXIII. The Collector shall transmit such application to the Engineer, who shall pass such order thereon as he shall think fit, which order shall be final.

and transmitted to Engineer.

Applicant to agree to defray cost.

XXV. If, after the construction of the proposed sluice has received the approval of the Engineer, the applicant shall on any grounds refuse to sign the written agreement mentioned in the previous clause, the fee of twenty-five Rupees prescribed in Section XXII shall become the absolute property of the Government; but in case he shall sign such agreement, such fee of twenty-five Rupees shall be taken in part payment of any sum which may become payable by him under such agreement.

Deposit to be forfeited if agreement not executed.

XXVI. Sluices constructed in any public embankment shall be opened only by or with the permission of the officer in the immediate charge of the embankment, under such orders, either general or special, as he may receive from the Engineer.

Sluices to be opened under authority of the Engineer.

XXVII. The costs of the construction, maintenance, and repairs of all works executed under the powers and provisions of this Act or any of them shall be borne by the owners of the lands benefited thereby, and shall be recovered from them as if the same were arrears of Government revenue.

Costs of works to be levied from owners of lands benefited.

XXVIII. Where lands the property of different owners, or in which different persons are interested, will in the opinion of the Collector derive benefit from the construction, alteration, or extension of any public embankment or drainage, or of any sluice in any public embankment, or from any other works executed under the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for such Collector to charge the cost of such construction, alteration, or extension, including the cost of any land required for the purpose thereof and the expense attending its acquisition, upon the persons so deriving such benefit rateably in the proportion of the benefit derived by such lands respectively and of their respective interests in the benefit so to be derived. Before assessing such contribution, the Collector shall cause a notice to be served on each of such persons, in which it shall be stated what land is being taken, and the purpose for which it is required, and that the lands of such person will derive benefit from the execution of the works, and giving him notice that an inquiry will be held, at a day and place to be named, for the purpose of apportioning amongst the persons whose lands will be benefited by the intended works the cost thereof including the cost of any land required therefor and the expense of acquiring it. In case such person does not reside within the district in which his lands are situate, the notice may be served upon his Agent, or if he has no Agent therein it will be sufficient to affix the notice upon some conspicuous part of his estate.

Cost of land acquired for embankment where lands of different owners benefited.

XXIX. On the day fixed in the notice, which shall not be less than one month later than the date of service of such notice, the Collector shall proceed to make the necessary enquiry for the determination of the proportion in which the estates affected by the construction, extension, or alteration of the embankment will be benefited thereby. In making this enquiry he shall receive such evidence as may be tendered by or on behalf of the owners of estates which may appear likely to be benefited by the construction, extension, or alteration of the embankment as aforesaid, and by or on behalf of any other persons who may claim to be interested in the said enquiry, and he may make or cause to be made such local investigation, and call for such documents and examine such witnesses, as he may think necessary; and all the provisions of the law for the time being in force in regard to the examination of witnesses and production of documents in judicial proceedings, shall be applicable to enquiries conducted by the Collector under this Act.

Mode of enquiry as to the proportion chargeable to each estate.

XXX. The Collector shall and may, after such enquiry, make an award in which he shall find and state the names of the persons whose lands will be or are benefited by the construction, alteration, or extension of such embankment and the proportion of the cost thereof, and including the cost of any land required therefor, the expense of its acquisition, and the cost of the said enquiry, which they ought respectively to bear. No appeal shall lie from the award of the Collector. But it shall be competent to the owner of any land assessed to a large amount than his fair proportion, to recover such excess in the Civil Court from the owner of any land or estate benefited thereby, upon whom no assessment has been made or a smaller amount has been assessed than ought to have been awarded against him. Provided that in such suit no more shall be recovered from any person than the amount to which he ought to have been assessed where he has not been required to contribute, or the amount by which the sum he was required to pay was less than his fair proportion where he has been required to contribute.

No appeal from Collector's award: but one owner may recover from another who has not been assessed or who has been under-assessed.

XXXI. There shall be included in the expense of acquiring the land so to be distributed amongst the persons benefited, not only the compensation awarded to the owner of the land taken, including interest at the rate of six per centum per annum from the time when the land was taken, but also the cost of surveys and plans, of notices of the said inquiry, and award, and all other costs, charges and expenses incident to obtaining possession of such land. The amount so awarded shall and may be recovered from the person so required to pay the same, in the same way and by the same means as arrears of Government revenue.

Expenses of acquiring land what included in.

Disposal of lands no longer required for embankments.

XXXII. Whenever, in consequence of the construction or alteration of any public embankment, the maintenance of any other public embankment or the retention of any land appropriated to the purposes thereof, may no longer be required, and the permanent relinquishment of the same may be deemed expedient by the Engineer, it shall be lawful for the Collector to dispose of the site of the embankment or of the land so abandoned, by public sale, and all the provisions of the law for the time being in force in regard to sales of land in default of payment of the Government revenue, shall be applicable, so far as the same may be reasonably applied, to sales under the provisions of this Section. The proceeds of such sales shall, after the payment of all expenses incurred on account of the same, be applied to the payment of the cost of any new embankment or drainage works affecting the said lands, and in such case the residue only of the cost of such new works shall be charged upon the owners of lands benefited as hereinbefore provided. Provided that it shall not be competent to the Collector to sell, in the manner aforesaid, any land which shall not have been taken up for embankment purposes under the provisons of this Act.

Collector may delegate any of his powers to a Deputy Collector.

XXXIII. A Collector may delegate any of his powers under this Act to a Deputy Collector, but from any order passed by a Deputy Collector to whom powers have been so delegated an appeal shall lie to the Collector, if presented within fifteen days of the date of the order.

Act does not to apply where obligation to provide land exists.

XXXIV. Nothing in this Act shall be held to exempt any person from the obligation of giving land gratuitously, or of paying for land taken up for the purpose of public embankments, where such obligation exists by any law or custom.

Power to make temporary embankments and dams.

XXXV. Whenever any person is desirous that a temporary water-course should be made through, or that a temporary road-way should be made over, any public embankment, or that a temporary dam should be constructed in any embanked river, he shall apply to the nearest officer of the Embankment Department, who shall communicate the application to the Engineer, and the Engineer shall pass such orders thereon as he shall think fit. If the proposed work is to be executed by an officer of Government, the applicant, before the commencement of the work, shall enter into a written agreement to defray the expenses of, and incident to, making such road-way, or of making and closing or removing such water-course or dam. In any case of emergency the officer in immediate charge of an embankment, subject to such general instructions as he may receive from the officer in charge of the embankments of the District, or from the Engineer, may cause a temporary water-course to be made through such embankment

Penalty on unauthorised interference with embankments or drainage.

XXXVI. Every person who, without the previous permission of the Collector obtained as hereinafter set forth, shall erect, or cause or wilfully permit to be erected, any new embankment, or shall obstruct or divert, or cause or wilfully permit to be obstructed or diverted, any drainage channel, shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding five hundred Rupees, or in default of payment to imprisonment for six months.

Proceedings to obtain new embankment or drainage.

XXXVII. Whenever any landholder, farmer, or cultivator is desirous of erecting any new embankment, or of obstructing or diverting any drainage channel, he shall apply to the Collector, and at the time of making such application shall deposit with him a statement of the proprosed works, and the Collector shall thereupon cause a notice of the same to be affixed in some conspicuous part of the neighbourhood where such work is proposed, to enable all who may be interested therein to offer any objection they may have to prefer. After the expiration of one month after the posting of such notice, the Engineer shall consider the proposed work and any objection thereto, and in case he shall be of opinion that no injury to the public or to individuals not consenting to the proposed work could result therefrom, he shall certify his opinion to the Collector, who may thereupon, unless he shall differ in opinion from the Engineer, give to the applicant permission by a license under his hand.

Person erecting private embankment to keep same in repair.

XXXVIII. Every person who shall be permitted to erect such embankment shall be deemed bound to keep such embankment in repair.

Estimate and specifications to be prepared.

XXXIX. Specifications of the work and estimates of the expenses which may be required for the maintenance or improvement of embankments, drainage channels, or other works or repairs executed under the provisions of this Act, with costs for which any person is wholly or in part chargeable, shall be prepared as soon after the rains in each year as may be practicable. Copies of the specifications and estimates shall be transmitted to the office of the Collector, and may be examined by any person interested in the embankments. Notice of the receipt of the specifications and estimates shall be posted up in the Collector's Office; and should any objection be preferred by any such person within a period of one month from the date of such notice, the Collector shall communicate the objection, with his own opinion thereupon, to the Engineer, who shall pass such orders as may appear to him reasonable and proper. Provided, however, that if the objection refer to the construction of sluices or other new works, any person dissatisfied with the order of the Engineer may appeal to the Commissioner, who, subject to the orders of the Board of Revenue and of Government, may disallow the construction of the work.

Preparation and settlement of accounts.

XL. The accounts of the actual expense incurred in maintaining or improving embankments, drainage cuts, or other works or repairs executed under the provisions of this Act, the expense of which is wholly or in part chargeable to individuals, and in constructing and repairing sluices and making temporary water-courses or roadways through or over any public embankment, or executing any other work the expense of which may be chargeable to individuals, shall be prepared as soon as possible after the completion of such works, and shall, as soon as such accounts shall have received the sanction of the Engineer, be forwarded to the Office of the Collector, and may be there examined by any person interested. Notice of the receipt of the accounts shall be posted up in the Collector's Office; and if, within one month from the date of such notice, any interested person shall object to the accounts on the ground either that the work charged for has not been performed, or that the whole sum charged has not been expended, or that the rates of charge are higher than the estimate, the Collector shall enquire into such objection, and if the objection appear to be well founded, shall communicate the same with his opinion thereon to the Engineer. If the Engineer concur with the Collector, he shall pass orders accordingly; if he differ, the case shall be reported to the Commissioner, whose decision shall be final. When the objection shall have been finally disposed of, or, if no objection be preferred, when a full month shall have elapsed from the date of notice, the Collector shall proceed to levy the amount from the parties liable to pay the same, by any process which is or may for the time being be in force for the recovery of arrears of Government revenue.

Power to remove houses.

XLI. Whenever the Engineer shall be of opinion that the removal of any houses, huts, or other buildings situated between a public embankment and the river is necessary, he shall make a report to that effect, accompanied by a detailed statement of the houses, huts, or other buildings to be removed, to the Collector of the District in whose jurisdiction the land on which such houses, huts, or other buildings stand is situated, and the Collector shall report the same to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, in order that proceedings may be taken under the provisions of the said Act X of 1870, for obtaining possession of such houses, huts, and buildings, and the ground on which they stand. Provided always that in case the Engineer be of opinion that the delay required by such proceedings is likely to be attended with grave and imminent danger to life or property, it shall be lawful for him forthwith to cause such houses, huts, or buildings to be removed, and in such case such houses, huts, and buildings and the ground on which they stand, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to have been taken in execution of the provisions of this Act.

PART II.—Compensation.

Compensation for loss sustained under exercise of powers of this Act.

XLII. Whenever any land shall have been taken or used under any of the powers or provisions of this Act, without proceedings having been taken under The Land Acquisition Act 1870, and whenever any moveable property shall have been taken or used under any of the powers or provisions of this Act, and whenever any right of fishing, right of drainage, right of the use of water, or other right or property shall have been injuriously affected by any thing done in the due exercise of the powers or provisions of this Act, the owner of the land or property which shall have been taken or injuriously affected, shall be entitled to compensation under the provisions hereinafter contained, but shall not, save as hereinafter is provided, be entitled to recover such property, nor the value thereof, nor any damages in respect of the taking or use thereof, nor in respect of any such property or right being injuriously affected by anything done in the due exercise of any of the said powers or provisions or by the consequences of anything so done.

Persons injuriously affected to apply to Collector.

XLIII. Any person whose land or other property shall have been so taken or injuriously affected may prefer a claim by petition to the Collector of the District for compensation. Provided that if such claim be made for land or property which shall have been taken or used, it shall be made within two months after it shall have been so taken or used, and if such claim be made for compensation for decrease of value of any right in property injuriously affected by anything done in exercise of the said powers and provisions, or by the consequences thereof, such claim shall be made within twelve months after the completion of the work by which such property is injuriously affected.

Collector to report claim to Commissioner.

XLIV. The Collector shall thereupon report the claim to the Commissioner of the Division, and shall within two months pass an order thereon, either admitting that compensation is to be made, or rejecting the application.

If no order made, power to sue.

XLV. If no order upon such application be passed within two months from the presentation of such petition, or if an order be passed rejecting the same, the claimant may, notwithstanding anything in this Act contained, bring such action as he may be advised in any Court which would have been competent to entertain such action if this Act had not been passed; provided that such action shall be brought within twelve months from the presentation of such petition of claim so to be preferred.

Proceeding where parties do not agree.

XLVI. If the order admits that compensation in respect of the land or property so taken or injuriously affected is to be made, but the Collector and the claimant cannot agree respecting the amount of the compensation to be made, or the person entitled to receive the same, the Collector shall proceed, in manner directed in this Part of the Act, to ascertain the amount of such compensation, and the person entitled to receive the same.

Notice to be served on all claimants.

XLVII. STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE attention of Government was drawn in 1868 to the injuries which had been sustained in the district of the 24-Pergunnahs from inundation, owing to certain obstructions which had been erected in a drainage channel, and the removal of which the magistrate stated could not be effected until the requisite legal formalities had been complied with; admitting at the same time that the removal of the obstructions was necessary for the public good, and it was considered that the existing law was not sufficiently stringent to meet such cases.

The opinion of qualified local officers was called for as to the points on which the present Embankment Act requires amendment, and in giving effect to those amendments it is deemed expedient to consolidate the existing laws for the acquisition of land, for the construction of embankments, and for their maintenance.

The objects sought to be attained by the modifications proposed in the existing laws are to extend the provisions of the Act so as to include within their operation the drainage of tracts of country which may be intimately connected with embankments; to include under the definition of "embankments" works which, though not embankments, are strictly accessories to embankments and without which it is impossible to secure the stability of the latter; to provide for the removal of impediments to drainage, and for the construction of works necessary to the drainage as well as to the protection from inundation of any land; to give greater facilities of action in cases when delay may be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property; to provide compensation for injury or loss to individuals caused by such action; to secure the more effective maintenance of private embankments, and to determine more equitably the mode in which the cost therefor incurred should be recoverable from the parties liable to pay the same, or from those benefited by such works; and lastly, to secure by more stringent penalties, embankments, and drainage works from wilful injury.

To render the Act more complete, the provisions of the existing laws for the acquisition of land required for works of the description specified in the Act have been incorporated therewith.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

DURING certain religious festivals at the town of Pooree and other places in Orissa, the lodging-houses to which pilgrims resort are much overcrowded, and are in many respects wholly unsuited for human habitation. The sanitary arrangements urgently required for preserving the health of the large number of pilgrims are altogether wanting, and much disease and mortality has arisen in consequence, and has been spread throughout the towns and districts through which the pilgrims pass on their return. It is therefore proposed to pass an Act for the regulation of the lodging-houses, and for raising by fees for licenses on the owners of such houses a sum which shall be taken as a contribution to the conservancy fund of the town of Pooree. The fund it is also intended to increase by other measures unconnected with the Bill, and it is hoped that by these means such sanitary improvements may be undertaken at the towns in which the shrines are situated, and on the roads leading to these towns, as shall tend materially to check the sickness and disease so fatal to the pilgrims.

The following Orders issued by the Government of India, in the Financial Department, are republished for general information : —

LEAVE AND ALLOWANCES.

No. 173.—Fort William, the 12th January 1871.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to rule that a Chaplain, proceeding to or returning from furlough or special leave, is at liberty to select as his port of embarkation or debarkation any port in India, provided only that the journey to or from it shall not extend to more than thirty days.

MINT AND CURRENCY.

No. 104.—The 11th January 1871.—The Governor General in Council is desirous of affording such increased facilities for the conversion of Currency Notes as can be given without imposing on the Government the cost of making remittances of specie.

With this view, it is notified that, so far as may be practicable, due regard being had to the primary obligation to discharge in cash all Notes at the place of issue and at the principal Office of Issue of the Presidency, the coin reserve at each Office of Issue will be held available for cashing Currency Notes of any Circle.

The amount up to which each Office of Issue is prepared to cash the Notes of other Circles will be notified daily at such Office for public information.

It is hoped that the arrangements now made will admit of Notes of all Circles being ordinarily convertible at the Offices of Issue in the interior, and at one at least of the Presidency towns; it cannot, however, be expected that the Offices of the two great towns, Calcutta and Bombay, between which places there is an active exchange, will, under ordinary circumstances, be able at the same time to cash Notes other than those which by law they are bound to cash on presentation.

It is further notified that the Head Commissioner of Currency at Calcutta and the Commissioners at Madras and Bombay have been authorized to sell drafts at their discretion on such Offices of Issue as have accumulations of coin which it is desirable to reduce. Particulars as to the places on which drafts are available from time to time can be learnt on application to the Officers named.

Circular Orders by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Zillah Judges and Judicial Commissioners, and Judges of Small Cause Courts,—(No. 37, dated Calcutta, the 22nd December 1870.)

(CIVIL SIDE.)

THE Court directs that, until the rules contemplated in the Court Fees' Act (VII. of 1870) shall have been published, adhesive Court fee stamps be received in lieu of cash payments for Peons' fees in all the Civil Courts of the Regulation and Non-Regulation Districts of Bengal, and that a Memo. book be kept up in each Court showing the value of the stamps put in as is done with regard to the stamps used for plaints and appeals.

By order of the High Court,

F. B. PEACOCK,
Registrar.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to the Superintendent of Stationery,—(No. 3816, dated Calcutta, the 17th December 1870.)

(CIVIL AND CRIMINAL SIDES.)

WITH a view to enable the Civil and Criminal Authorities subordinate to Civil and Sessions Judges to make Periodical Returns to the latter in such forms as shall be available for the preparation of the Quarterly Returns enjoined on such Judges by C. O. No. 31, dated 4th November last, the Court have prepared slip forms (A, B, C, & D) as per margin, of which specimens are sent herewith, and direct me to request you will be so good as to provide at once a sufficient supply of the same for the use of Subordinate Judges and Moonsiffs as well as of District Magistrates and Sub-divisional Officers.

Forms, Civil and Criminal.

A. Statement of Civil work in the Court of Subordinate Judge or Moonsiff, as the case may be.
B. Statement of appeals before the Courts of Subordinate Judges.
C. Statement of miscellaneous work. (Two forms bear this letter, one for Subordinate Judges, the other for Moonsiffs.)
D. Statement of offences reported and persons tried.

2. As regards the Civil forms (A, B, & C), I am to point out that Statement B, which relates to appeals only, will not be required for Moonsiffs whose Courts are purely Courts of original jurisdiction: of this form, therefore, a smaller supply will suffice. Specimens of the three forms above mentioned in both Bengali and Oordoo* are sent herewith. These Returns will be submitted by the various subordinate Courts to the Judge monthly. Each Officer will therefore require twenty-four as a year's supply, i.e., one for despatch and one for record in his Office each month. To this number six more may be added to meet contingencies, accidents, &c. A year's supply therefore to each Subordinate Civil Officer should not exceed thirty copies.

3. Form D, which is Criminal, will be required by Sub-divisional Officers, and a specimen in Bengali and Oordoo is accordingly forwarded.

4. As the above Return will be required to be made quarterly, and as two copies will be necessary for each Officer, one for his Office draft and the other for the despatch copy, eight copies would be necessary, to which might be added four copies to provide for accidents and other contingencies. It will therefore be sufficient if twelve copies of each form are provided by you as a year's supply for each Officer requiring them.

5. For your information and guidance in applying the above principle, and with a view to check local indents, I am to append hereto a list showing the number of Subordinate Judges and Moonsiffs in each Judgeship, as well as the number of Magistracies and sub-divisions subordinate to the High Court.

6. In requesting you in the first paragraph of this letter to lay in a sufficient stock of these statements, the Court are particularly anxious to avoid a very large stock of Vernacular slips being at once printed. It is their intention to direct Judges and Magistrates, in making their indents, to specify the number of Slip Statements that they will require in English and in the Vernacular, and, after these forms have been in use a short time, you will probably not find much difficulty in estimating with tolerable exactness the number of both kinds which you will require to keep in store.

7. I am to remind you, in conclusion, that all indents from Subordinate Judges and Moonsiffs are to be submitted through their superior the District Judge, as provided in paragraph 3 of C. O. No. 16, dated 17th June 1870.

I have, &c.,
F. B. PEACOCK,
Registrar.

P. S.—A set of these forms when printed or lithographed should be sent for record in this Office.

CIRCULAR MEMO. No. 7.

COPY forwarded to all Zillah Judges and District Magistrates for information and guidance, with the request that, in making their indents upon the Superintendent of Stationery, they will pay particular attention to the instructions given to that Officer in the 4th paragraph of the annexed letter, and to invariably inform him of the number of Slip Statements required by them in English and the Vernacular.

By order, &c.,
F. B. PEACOCK,
Registrar.

* NOTE.—The only Oordoo Judgeships are Bhaugulpore, Gya, Patna, Sarun, Shahabad, and Tirhoot: the rest may be supplied with Bengali forms.

REGULATION OF LODGING-HOUSES AT POOREE.

THE HON'BLE ASHLEY EDEN moved for leave to bring in a Bill for the better regulation of lodging-houses at Pooree. He said that it would be in the recollection of some of the members of the Council that a somewhat similar measure was introduced in 1867 and was subsequently withdrawn. He was not in the Council at the time the Bill was withdrawn, and he had no distinct knowledge of the causes which led to the abandonment of the Bill. As far as he could gather from the proceedings of the Council there were two grounds for the course adopted: one was in consequence of its having been stated by the hon'ble member on his left (Mr. Schalch), as the result of his experience, that the lodging-houses at Pooree were not in such a state as to require a special law for their regulation. The hon'ble member, he observed, had said—

"He found that pilgrims were in the habit of putting up in well-known places, which seemed to be in a very fair condition, and were not under ordinary circumstances overcrowded; but when festivals occurred, not only those lodging-houses, but every house in the town, afforded accommodation for one or more persons, according to their means, and the great mass that flocked in; and the temples and other buildings were also crowded. The general opinion at Pooree seemed to be that there was no necessity for an Act of this nature to go into the details of the management of a lodging-house, but all that was necessary was to give magistrates power to prevent overcrowding, and the powers now possessed by the magistrate would be sufficient to provide for all measures necessary for purposes of conservancy."

The second reason was that urged by the Advocate-General, who was then in charge of the Bill; that the Bill, as originally introduced, had been so emasculated by the select committee that it was considered to be of no use, and there was very little in it which was not already contained in the provisions of the District Municipal Improvement Act: and the Bill was therefore withdrawn on the ground that it was just as easy to extend the provisions of that Act to the town of Pooree. Both of those grounds were, however, found to be untenable, for it was found not possible to extend the provisions of the Municipal Act to Pooree; and even if extended, it would not have the effect that was desired. Moreover, the description of the state of the lodging-houses at Pooree given by the hon'ble member was found not to be perfectly correct, as was clearly shewn by the descriptions given in the special reports made by Drs. Mouat, Smith, and Stewart. The reports were not very pleasant reading; but for the information of the Council, and as there clearly was some misapprehension on the subject, he would read a few extracts. Dr. Smith had spoken in his diary of Bullia Gooroo's house being the best lodging-house in Pooree. He would now read what Dr. Stewart noticed in his description of the same house in his diary kept during the late cholera visitation at Pooree :—

"On the 15th inspected Bullia Gooroo's lodging-house (which was spoken of by Dr. Smith as the model lodging-house), as also an adjacent one kept by a female named Phulzeree. One death from cholera occurred there to-day, in a pilgrim who was here three days. I measured the room, it was 15 feet by 12, had only one door; there were 11 beds in it; other rooms were quite full, and the people very much crowded. A strong urinous and fœcal odour prevailed throughout; the atmosphere was oppressive and stifling."

* * * * * * *

"In the evening I went with the constable Muddoo Sing to inspect the place where another case of cholera was reported. It was in Bullia Gooroo's lodging-house; the entrance hall was thronged with people. I was told that pilgrims occupy every square inch of the ground, and at night there is no moving room. A strong urinous odour prevailed in the centre enclosure. In the back ground people defecated freely, and all the rubbish of the house lay heaped in corners unremoved."

* * * * * * * *

"There was one room in this lodging-house (Phulzeree's) which is deserving of mention. Inside a person could hardly stand erect; the breadth was not over 6 feet; the length was filled up by a line of beds; the door was equal in size to the panel of an ordinary door; one could only creep in; it was $1\frac{1}{2}$ by $1\frac{1}{2}$ feet."

* * * * * * * *

"Found that the backyard of this and other houses, lodging-houses (which I inspected), were freely used as privies, and that no attempt was made to remove the soil. Rubbish of all kinds filled the courtyards, the rooms were unswept, and a sickening odour prevailed in all."

* * * * * * * *

"Visited several huts; found them, as usual, very filthy; the backyards of all were covered with filth; some of the privies were the greatest abomination I ever saw; both urine and excreta were in every stage of decomposition."

* * * * * * * *

"There were two wells in the house from which water is drawn for domestic use. There is also a very noxious tank close by, close to the well that I saw, about twelve feet from it, and on a lower level than the grounds surrounded. The well was a hole containing water, washings of a takoor; this hole was never cleaned; water sinks readily in the soil; the little stagnant water in it was loaded with rubbish and swarming with worms. The water of the well was drunk by Khetter Mohun and others. Native doctor Fuckeera Sing saw this well with me.

"From this place I went to the police station, and then to Bullia Gooroo's lodging-house. Seen a woman down with cholera (a Bengalee pilgrim), attacked this day, 22nd June. Pilgrims were pretty full in the place. Went to the backyard; seen as follows:—a well with privy enclosure 12 feet from it; the privy is on higher ground than the platform of the well; round about this platform of stone were excavations in the earth, which were deep urinals; the urine was unmistakeable both in appearance and odour, and no one could gainsay that the state of affairs was as bad as could possibly be. Filth and feculence were abundant all about, for the backyard was quite a promiscuous privy. The soil, if removed at all, was gathered only to be buried in the place. It was said that the waters of this well were not drunk; this, however, I doubt very much. I was shewn a well in an enclosure on the other side; the enclosure was surrounded by rooms for pilgrims, and it seemed as if this well was intended for them, and the well above alluded to for the pilgrims of that side of the house. However, this well is only separated by a wall from the filth of the yard behind, and there is a drain leading from it, which gave tokens of being used as an urinal."

* * * * * * * *

"I visited the lodging-houses on the 27th instant, and found the usual over-crowding; the privy was covered with filth; cholera stools were apparent; among others two of the above patients were in the house, the rest were in hospital A large well, about 50 yards from the house, was the one the pilgrims said they got water from, but used, they said, only for washing dishes, &c. The Nurindro water, they said, was what they drank. When I saw the well there were numbers drawing, they said for drinking purposes. It is without coping, and but slightly raised from the street; dust can freely blow into it. The streets are very narrow, scarcely four feet wide in some places; the houses on each side are raised on high plinths; the backyards and privies are on the same high level; the soil is loose black, permitting free soakage."

Dr. Smith describes the houses at Pooree as follows :—

"The houses are very faulty in a sanitary point of view. As a rule, each house is considerably raised on a masonry plinth from three to six or eight feet in height. Through this plinth runs a small circular masonry gutter, which communicates with the rooms in the interior of the house, and through the gutter passes fluid refuse and urine from the interior. Nothing can be more objectionable than this, and yet this system obtains in the case of every house in Pooree.

Noxious ooze is continually trickling from the opening in every plinth, down its front, to a sink or cesspit below. A more dirty or inefficient plan of sewerage or drainage, or whatever it be called, could not be imagined. Sometimes even within the plinth itself a dark, deep, open cesspool exists, a receptacle of indescribable abominations; and yet there are thousands of these in Pooree for ever evolving deleterious gases. In the front of each house is a small verandah, immediately below the floor of which is the gutter already described, the effluvia from which consequently emanate within two or three feet of those who sit in the verandah,—an ever present source of danger to health. The interior of each house consists, as a rule, of two or three small rooms, leading one from the other, leeped with mud, and without any windows or roof ventilation. In these rooms pilgrims are crowded, until not an inch of space is left uncovered. The massing of human beings is something horrible; it exactly reminds one of sheep in a pen. It appeared to me almost wonderful that human beings could exist under such circumstances, the conditions being truly poisonous in character. Each room so-called may be described as a badly lighted den, in which ventilation is not only deficient, but altogether wanting; where the atmosphere is warm, close, stifling, and sickening, and where human beings are crowded together in excess, being in direct contravention of every known law of health. What organic poisons may not be lurking in those loathsome places! What more favorable seed-plot could be devised for the generation of specific disease!"

Dr. Mouat's description was in similar terms :—

"In the lodging-houses they are crowded to such an extent, that I was shown one apartment, in the best pilgrim hotel of the place, in which eighty persons were said to have passed the night. It was 13 feet long,

10 feet 5 inches broad, with side walls six feet and a half in height, and a low pent roof over it. It had but one entrance, and no escape for the effete air. It was dark, dirty, and dismal when quite empty, and must have been a pest-house during the festival. In this house, in a similar room, occurred the first case of cholera of the last outbreak. If this be the normal state of the best lodging-house in the broad main street of Pooree, it is not difficult to imagine the condition of the worst, in the narrow, confined, undrained, back-slums of the town, for there are lower depths even in this abode of filth and corruption."

[To this passage the following foot-note is attached:—"This statement seemed to be so incredible, that the matter was subjected to direct experiments in the Alipore Jail, where it was founed that 90 natives of average size could squat in a cell 10 feet square, and 120 could stand in the same space."]

* * * * * * *

The district superintendent of police also states:—

"I went into a house in the town this afternoon; about 45 pilgrims were putting up, men and women. The place had only two doors, no windows (one of the doors was locked). This place measured 12 by 20 feet, certainly not more; and in this place no less than 45 persons were crammed. The stench was overpowering, and the heat like an oven; no wonder the people were attacked with cholera; and unless some law is passed to prevent these pundahs overcrowding their houses with pilgrims, not only cholera, but other diseases, are sure to be generated."

Those were the opinions of three medical men describing the state of things since the former Bill was withdrawn. The subject was very carefully considered by Mr. Ravenshaw, the commissioner of the Orissa division, and he very strongly insisted on some measure being passed. The Bill before the Council had been prepared by Dr. Smith and Mr. Ravenshaw in consultation, and he thought that the object in view would be attained by it. He did not know that there was any necessity to go into the details of the Bill, which would be printed and circulated. He thought that the extracts quoted showed that the Bill was prematurely withdrawn on the previous occasion on the mistaken supposition that there was no great evil to be dealt with in regard to these lodging-houses.

MR. SCHALCH said the hon'ble mover of the Bill had referred to him as to the remarks made by him on a previous occasion when the former Bill was under consideration. He had no very clear recollection of the state of things in the lodging-houses of Pooree. He remembered that he went over a great portion of the town with the magistrate of Pooree. It was in the year of the famine, and very probably at that season of the year the number of pilgrims was very much less than ordinarily. His impression was that, after consultation with the magistrate, he considered that although the houses might not approach that state of sanitation which a sanitary officer might deem necessary, yet, taking them in connection and comparison with the general mode of life of the natives, there was no reason to seek for greater powers of interference than the magistrate could himself exercise for carrying out all necessary precautions. Certainly the extracts which had been read did show a state of things which required correction; and very possibly, since the time to which he had referred, it might be that the number of pilgrims had increased, and better accommodation was now required for them. Under these circumstances he had no wish to object to the introduction of the Bill; he thought, however, that the committee should carefully see that interference was not exercised to a greater extent than was actually required.

The motion was then agreed to.

EMBANKMENTS AND DRAINAGE.

MR. SCHALCH moved that the Bill to provide for embankments and drainage be read in Council. In doing so he said that on a former occasion—in fact at the last meeting of the Council—when he moved for leave to introduce this Bill, he explained the circumstances which gave rise to its introduction, and the objects sought to be attained by the measure. He would now, with the permission of the Council, briefly refer to the details of the Bill; and in doing so he proposed not to take up the time of the council by referring to those portions of the Bill which merely re-enacted the existing law, but would draw attention to those parts of the measure which were entirely new in principle, or which contained alterations or modifications to a considerable degree; and it would be the easier for hon'ble members to follow him, because such portions only had been printed in italics, while the rest of the Bill, which merely re-enacted the existing law, was printed in the ordinary character.

The first point to which he would drawn the attention of the Council was the definition of the word "embankment" as given in the 2nd section. It now included not only those works which naturally fell under the definition of an embankment, but also other works, such as dams, dykes, walls, groynes, and spurs, which were required or made for the protection of embankments, or of any land from erosion or overflow of rivers, tides, or waters. It had been found that these subsidiary works were so inherent a part of embankments themselves that it was necessary that the embankment officer should have the same control over them that he had over the embankments themselves.

The next section to which he would allude was the 7th, which would enable the engineer to construct new embankments where they were necessary for the protection of the country, and to dig out new channels for drainage. Hitherto the engineer had only power over existing embankments, but it had been thought advisable to give him similar powers over the drainage of the country. It had been found absolutely necessary that the powers now given should be exercised, though it would be under the same safeguards and after the same inquiries which applied to the powers exercised by embankment officers under the existing law.

In the 13th section there was a very important alteration. He mentioned on the former occasion how, under certain circumstances, it was found that very great loss and danger were incurred by having to follow the forms of procedure laid down by the present Act before the embankment officer could take action in certain cases when immediate loss to life or property was imminent. It was now proposed to grant him power to take immediate action in such cases, subject to certain restrictions. If it be found afterwards, on inquiry being made, that the causes which led to such action being taken were not sufficient, or rather that the works executed were not required, provision was made whereby the former state of things should be restored at the expense of Government. This provision would compel embankment officers to exercise great care in putting these powers into force, for Government would hold them responsible if these powers were exercised without sufficient cause. At the same time a further provision was introduced whereby, in consequence of these works, which were executed for the benefit of the general community, causing loss or injury to private individuals, compensation would be made for such individual loss.

Sections 16 to 22 were of a totally new character. They referred to the drainage of the country, and empowered engineers to call upon the proprietors of lands to keep clear the drainage of their lands. It had been found that the absence of such a provision in the existing law had led to great difficulties, and it was to be hoped that by some provision of this sort means would be taken at a comparatively small cost to remove obstruction to the drainage of the country, which, in the opinion of many persons well able to form an opinion on the subject, had been held to be one of the causes of the severe illness of an epidemic nature which prevailed in the districts bordering Calcutta. No doubt there would be cases in which the measures which could be taken under the provisions of these sections for carrying out such improvements would not suffice to effect a thorough system of drainage, and in such cases it might become necessary to have recourse to the provisions of the other Bill which was introduced by the hon'ble member on his right (Mr. Eden). At the same time it was thought that in a very large number of cases the action taken under these sections would suffice for securing at a trifling cost the thorough drainage of the country in the greater number of instances where obstructions had been created.

In section 27 there was a very important modification of the existing law. By that law the whole cost of the maintenance and repair of an embankment is thrown on the zemindar of the estate on whose lands the embankment lay, utterly regardless of the benefit it might confer on other estates. It frequently happened that an embankment protected not only the estate of the proprietor in whose land it lay, but also largely benefited other estates. But under the existing law the proprietors of these particular estates would escape all payment towards the cost of the maintenance and repair of those works. It was therefore proposed to introduce in this Bill the principle which had been accepted in the Act passed by this Council in 1866. That Act (VII. of 1866) provided for the payment of the cost of land required for embankments, and declared that such costs should be borne by all the proprietors who benefited from the construction of the embankment, in exact proportion to the benefit they derived from its acquisition. It was proposed now to introduce the same principle here, and instead of declaring that the actual owner of the estate on which the embankment stands should bear the whole cost of its maintenance and repair, all estates deriving benefit from the embankment should pay towards such cost in the exact proportion in which they benefited from the embankment. He (Mr. Schalch) thought he need say but little in support of this principle; and in these days, when the local Governments were required to defray by contributions from the general community of their provinces the cost of works of a local nature, it seemed to him that the cost of embankments and all such cognate works should be defrayed by those who alone benefited from their construction, and not by the general public.

Sections 28 to 34 incorporated in this Act the provisions of Act VII. of 1866 for apportioning the cost of land required for the construction of embankments. This had been done in view to bringing the whole subject in one enactment, so that the law might be seen at one view.

Section 36 authorized the infliction of penalties in cases of the unauthorized interference with embankments or drainage works. It had been found that great injury had been done by persons who for their own advantage had injured such works. Thus it often happened that proprietors of estates, rather than incur the expense of making sluices for properly draining their estates, caused breaches to be made, which caused serious injury to the lands of the neighbouring proprietors. But while more stringent punishment was proposed to be enforced for such offences, provision was made for affording greater facilities to proprietors for obtaining the construction of any new embankments or drainage channels.

Part II of the Bill, commencing with section 42, made provision for compensation for losses sustained by the exercise of the powers conferred by this Act, and a subsequent portion of the Part referred to the procedure under which land was to be taken for the purpose of making embankments. A great portion of these provisions was based upon the existing law for the acquisition of land for public purposes contained in Act X. of 1870 of the supreme legislature. He did not quite understand, when the Bill was first placed in his hands, why these provisions were introduced; and here he might observe that when the Bill was entrusted to him, the Bill in its present form was placed in his hands, and although he accepted cordially the general principles of the Bill, he could not hold himself responsible for all its details; and in this case he was not quite sure whether the provisions of that Act could properly be incorporated in it, nor how far the Council could modify existing Acts of the imperial legislature. But he believed that the reason for introducing those provisions was that that Act made no provision for the acquisition of land on emergencies unless the forms of the Act had been previously gone through. He believed it was intended to provide a mode by which, in cases of emergencies, land could at once be taken up and the question of compensation subsequently determined. The provisions of the existing Act, it was believed, would not apply in all its entirety to the acquisition of land for the purposes of this Bill; and therefore it was thought expedient to modify them so as to meet the peculiar circumstances of the Bill.

Another section to which he would refer was section 84, which was of rather a sweeping nature, and conferred power to levy a fine on a village for injury to works constructed under the Bill where the offender could not be discovered. This section had been introduced at the instance of the Department of Public Works, who, notwithstanding their utmost endeavours, have been frequently unable to discover the offender in cases where severe injury had been done to embankments for the benefit of a village, regardless of the loss or damage which might occur to others. These offences had been committed with impunity, since the whole village combined to screen the offender. He thought it would require rather strong grounds to warrant the enactment of such a provision, and that the section would fairly call for the most careful consideration of the select committee; and even if such a provision were found necessary, he thought it should be confined within the smallest limits necessary to meet the emergency of the case.

With these remarks he begged to move that the Bill be read in Council.

Baboo Degumber Mitter said that this was unquestionably a well-considered and a very desirable measure, and he subscribed to every word that had fallen from the hon'ble mover while applying for leave to bring in the Bill; and he readily bore testimony to the fact of many drainage channels having been closed by zemindars, either wantonly or for their own selfish purposes. The Bill, as far as he had been able to judge, had scrupulously respected private rights, while at the same time it had taken every precaution to protect public interests from being jeopardized by the acts of individuals pursuing their own selfish aims. And he entertained great hopes that with certain modifications, which no doubt the Bill would undergo in committee, the present measure, if carried out properly, besides furthering its immediate objects, would in a much greater degree contribute to check the ravages of epidemics, than the one which was avowedly intended for the purpose—he meant the drainage Bill.

The motion was then agreed to and the Bill referred to a select committee, consisting of Mr. Thompson, Mr. Robinson, Baboo Joteendro Mohun Tagore, and the mover Mr. Schalch.

VILLAGE CHOWKEEDARS.

On the motion of Mr. Rivers Thompson the Bill to amend the Village Chowkeedaree Act, 1870, was further considered in order to the settlement of the clauses.

Baboo Degumber Mitter moved the introduction of the following section after section 5:—

"In section 21 of the said Act VI. of 1870, the word "quarterly" shall be substituted for the word "monthly;" and in sections 21 and 26 the word "quarter" shall be substituted for the word "month," wherever such word occurs in the said sections; and in section 25 the word "thirty" shall be substituted for the word "seven;" and in Section 26 the word "fortieth" shall be substituted for the word "tenth;" and the said several sections shall be read and construed as if the words hereby directed to be substituted had been originally inserted in the room or the place of the words for which they are hereby respectively directed to be substituted."

He said his object in moving this amendment was simply to afford relief to the tax-payers as well as to the tax-gatherer. Instead of subjecting tax-payers to the annoyance of constant visits from the tax-gatherer, he would provide for quarterly payments, which would not only relieve the villagers, but would very much lighten the work of the tax-gatherer, as well as facilitate the keeping of accounts by the punchayets; and he did not see that it would in any way interfere with the proper working of the law.

The Advocate-General said that from such information as he possessed (independently of the practical inconvenience of considering at the last moment important amendments in a Bill which itself had for its object the amendment of a law already passed), he did not know that there was any objection to the alteration proposed, in favor of convenience to the tax-payers and convenience to the collector, of substituting quarterly payments for monthly. But as the whole of the amendments proposed were before the Council in one notice paper, he thought it would be most convenient now that he should point out what appeared to him the practical objection to those portions of the amendments proposed that did not apply specifically to the 21st section of the Village Chowkeedaree Act. As he understood the whole of the proposed amendments of the hon'ble member, he desired that while the instalments of the tax should be paid quarterly in advance, instead of monthly in advance, the period of delay, or days of grace, given under the 25th section of the Act, should be extended from seven to thirty, and that the period after which action might be taken on the part of the punchayet under section 26 should be extended from the tenth to the fortieth day of the quarter. Now he (the Advocate-General) could not see any reason or principle why, if this alteration from monthly to quarterly payments was to be made, any inconvenience would be caused by taking steps for the collection of the tax within the period now prescribed by the Act; that was to say, within seven days after the instalment became payable; and why, under the 26th section, the punchayet, in the event of non-payment, should not be able to commence action for the enforcement of payment after the tenth day. Irrespective of that, he did not see that there was any material difference between the collection of the tax by monthly and by quarterly payments. Indeed, as regards the number of days of grace given to those amenable to the tax, he had to point out that if the alterations in sections 25 and 26, from seven to ten and from ten to forty, were introduced, the punchayet might be placed in a position of great inconvenience and difficulty. This was one of the instances of the extreme inconvenience to which the Council were put by the practice of introducing important amendments at the last moment. It was not possible to introduce amendments of this kind without very carefully considering how far they affected other provisions of the Bill. Let us compare the 25th and 26th sections, taking the alterations proposed to be made in those sections of substituting thirty for seven and forty for ten, with the 43rd, 44th, and 45th sections of the Act. Under sections 25 and 26, as proposed to be altered, the payers of the tax would have until the thirtieth day of the quarter to pay, and the punchayet could not take any steps whatever to enforce payment till after the fortieth day, and what they could do after the fortieth day would be to publish a list of defaulters, which would necessarily take up some time. If there was any meaning in the publication of this list, it was intended that it should be published for a certain number of days, greater or smaller. Then, under section 27, the collecting member of the punchayet was to issue his warrant for the enforcement of payment to the chowkeedar, and the chowkeedar was to proceed to put it into execution. Under the 44th section the chowkeedar might go before the magistrate on the 15th day of the month following the month for which his salary was due, which, taken in connection with the period of forty days, until the expiration of which the punchayet could not proceed to enforce payment of the tax, would give the punchayet only five days, and sometimes only four, to obtain the necessary funds for the payment of the chowkeedar's salary; and some time should be given between the time when they were authorized to enforce payment of the tax and the day on which the chowkeedar's salary was due, to enable the punchayet to issue a list of defaulters and warrants to the chowkeedar for the levy of the tax. Practically, it would be quite impossible for all that to be carried out within these five days: therefore the punchayet would have no answer to make why they had not taken steps to enforce payment; and, in fact, the only answer they could make was that it was impossible for them to have taken such steps within the time allowed. Therefore, when the Council came to the consideration of the amendments proposed in sections 25 and 26, he would propose that those sections should remain unaltered. In other words, that any person liable to pay should only have seven days within which payment should be made, and that the punchayet should take action immediately after the tenth day; that would give ample time to put them in a position to pay the chowkeedar and protect themselves from the unfortunate position in which they would be put from not being able to collect the tax within sufficient time to realize the amount required.

Baboo Degumber Mitter said that he was quite willing to withdraw such portions of his amendment as might be found to clash with any portion of the Act, or to interfere with its proper working, and only to adhere to the amendment in sections 21 and 26, providing for quarterly instead of monthly payments of the tax. He would, therefore, beg leave to withdraw his former motion, and to substitute the following:—

"In section 21 of the said Act VI. of 1870, the word "quarterly" shall be substituted for the word "monthly;" and in sections 21 and 26 the word "quarter" shall be substituted for the word "month," wherever such word occurs in the said sections; and the said several sections shall be read and construed as if the words hereby directed to be substituted had been originally inserted in place of the words for which they are hereby respectively directed to be substituted."

Mr. Wyman said he thought that the remarks of the learned Advocate-General showed most conclusively the undesirability of introducing into a Bill once passed a new clause affecting more or less sections throughout the Bill. It almost became necessary in such cases to refer the Bill back to a select committee in order that it might be carefully seen that the alteration made in one section did not affect other sections; or, if it did, that those should all be carefully considered in connection with the original amendment. Although, perhaps, the proposition with regard to changing the period of payment from monthly to quarterly intervals was not in itself objectionable, yet, seeing that the principle was involved of the danger of some confusion arising in other sections, he thought it would be better to let the Act stand as it is, and he would therefore oppose the amendment on that ground. Besides, if the rate was made payable in quarterly instalments, it would be difficult for the punchayet to pay the chowkeedar's wages month by month: if the collections were made quarterly, he did not see how payments could be made monthly. On these grounds he would vote against the amendment.

Mr. Rivers Thompson said that, considering the opinions that had been expressed by the hon'ble member who had just spoken, he might have expected the hon'ble member to have voted with him at the last meeting of the Council, and allowed the Bill then to pass.

The amendment now under consideration was the amendment proposed in section 21 of the Act, in which the hon'ble member on his right proposed to substitute "quarterly" for

"monthly," so as to secure quarterly payments of the tax in advance. As the member in charge of the Bill, he wished to explain that it was from no want of consideration of the point that the Act provided for monthly instead of quarterly collections of the tax. The Bill originally contained a provision for the payment of the tax by quarterly instalments. When it was referred to the select committee there was a discussion on the question, and, if not unanimously, it was at least by a large majority, agreed that monthly payments should be substituted for the proposed quarterly collections, and the reasons given for the change were that, as the sums were so small, it would tend to regularity of payments, and be rather a convenience that the villagers should have to pay a monthly rate instead of larger sums by quarterly instalments.

These considerations led the committee to adopt that view, and the section was so framed by them and passed by the Council without discussion.

Then when the new Bill was introduced to correct certain inconveniences which had arisen from delay in the passing of the Bill, the hon'ble member got up at the moment when the question before the Council was whether the Bill should be passed, and pressed for the introduction of an amendment, not upon the Bill then under consideration, but in the Act which had been passed with the sanction of the Governor General. As the learned Advocate-General had pointed out, the amendment proposed in the 25th and 26th sections would be impracticable without entailing considerable difficulties in the collection of the tax, and as the hon'ble member opposite (Mr. Wyman) had stated, the introduction now of the amendment in the 21st section might possibly affect other sections of the law and create confusion and inconvenience. The particular objection taken by the hon'ble member would perhaps not apply, because the quarterly collections would be paid in advance, and the money for the payment of the chowkeedars' wages would be always ready. There was, however, no provision in the Act for the retention or custody of the money that would necessarily always remain in hand if a whole quarter's tax were levied in advance, and in the absence of any security for the proper application of the money, the sum, though small, would still be in the hands of some one, and there was then the risk of peculation and loss. He considered that on the whole it would be advisable to retain the 21st section of Act VI. of 1870 as it stood.

Mr. Schalch said as a member of the committee on the former Bill, he might observe that he believed it was then agreed that all payments should be made monthly, and he retained that opinion only till the other day, when he had a conversation on the subject with the Commissioner of the Presidency division, who had taken special interest in the preliminary measures necessary for extending the provisions of the Act to his division. The Commissioner had urged very strongly that in his opinion, as the Act now stood, there would be very great harassment to the tax-payers if they were required to pay these small sums monthly; and from the very fact of punchayets being required to keep elaborate accounts, much trouble would be saved by having them kept quarterly instead of monthly. He pressed the subject so very strongly that he (Mr. Schalch) felt inclined to alter his opinion. He certainly felt quite inclined to give his full support to the amendment as far as it was intended to convert monthly into quarterly payments. He thought that the learned Advocate-General had shown that there was a difficulty if the amendment was carried further so as to affect the 25th and 26th sections. He believed that the object of affording a longer period of grace for the payment of quarterly instead of monthly instalments was, because, if the instalments were payable quarterly, the villages would have to pay larger sums than if they had to pay monthly; but, looking to the fact that even the quarterly instalments would not be very heavy, he thought it scarcely necessary that any further period of grace need be allowed, and that the object of the Commissioner would be obtained by confining the amendment to the 21st section, and the substitution of quarterly for monthly in the 26th section.

So far from this alteration affecting, as the hon'ble member on his left (Mr. Wyman) feared would be the case, the security of the payment to the chowkeedars, it would, he (Mr. Schalch) thought, rather advance it: since the punchayet would have in their hands funds sufficient to meet the chowkeedars' wages for a quarter instead of for a month. If therefore the amendment were confined to the substitution of a quarterly instead of a monthly payment of the assessment, the object of the hon'ble mover of the amendment would, he thought, be carried out.

The substituted motion was then agreed to.

Mr. Rivers Thompson said that it had been brought to his notice only last week, that in the canal irrigation works in the Cuttack district the irrigation officers had found that they were unable to get any assistance from the village chowkeedars. Persons appropriated water without license or payment, and the officers of the department found that they could get no information from the people to enable them to discover the offenders. It was therefore thought that it would be better if power were given to the Government to authorise any officer, besides the police and magisterial authorities, to have the authority of applying to the chowkeedar for information and securing their services. He would therefore move the introduction of the following section after the above:—

"In section 30 of the said Act the following clause shall be substituted for clause 6 thereof:—'He shall supply any local information which the magistrate or any officer of police, or any other officer thereunto authorized by an order in writing of the Lieutenant-Governor may require:' and the said section shall be read and construed as if the said clause had been originally inserted therein, in place of the clause for which it is hereby directed to be substituted."

The motion was agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. Thompson the Bill was then passed.

RECOVERY OF ARREARS OF REVENUE.

On the motion of Mr. Money the report of the select committee on the Bill to amend the procedure for the recovery of arrears of land revenue in respect of tenures not being estates was taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and the clauses were considered in the form recommended by the committee.

The Bill was settled without amendment; and on the motion of Mr. Money the Bill was then passed.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 14th instant.

REGULATION OF LODGING-HOUSES AT POOREE

The Hon'ble Ashley Eden moved that the Bill for the better regulation of lodging-houses at Poorée be read in Council. The Bill had, since the last meeting of the Council, been circulated, and he did not think he need say anything further as to the necessity of the measure. The principle of the Bill was that every lodging-house keeper should have a certificate from the health officer appointed by Government that his house was a fit and proper place for the reception of lodgers, and the certificate should also state the number of lodgers the house was licensed to hold. On receipt of the health officer's certificate, the lodging-house keeper would have to pay a fee of one rupee, and the magistrate would then grant a license for the lodging-house, specifying the number of lodgers the house is licensed to contain, according to the number the house is capable of containing as certified by the health officer; and a fee of eight annas each would be levied on the number of lodgers for which the license was taken out: if the house was licensed to hold ten persons, the fee for the year would be Rs. 5. It was calculated that there would be 3,168 houses taking out certificates, and that each house on the average would take out a license for ten lodgers, for which the keeper would have to pay Rs. 5. The total collections on this calculation would amount to about Rs. 19,000, which, together with fines for breaches of the conditions of licenses, would be a contribution towards a fund which it was intended to raise for the conservancy and improvement of the town, as well as for the raising of sheds for such of the pilgrims as could not be accommodated in the licensed lodging-houses. It was calculated, however, that a much larger sum would be required for sanitary purposes, and this would be but a small contribution towards that object; and it still remained to be considered what other means could be adopted for the purpose. The question of a tax on pilgrims was under the consideration of the Government, and also a proposal was under consideration for receiving for the use of the pilgrims and for their accommodation some portion of the religious endowments which had been originally set aside for them, but which had been perverted to the private uses of the muthdars and keepers of shrines. These endowments represented a very considerable sum of money. That was, however, a question that did not arise on this Bill, and he merely mentioned it to show that a large sum was required, and that there was an intention to raise money for this purpose by other means.

As regards the Bill itself, he would point out that there were certain provisions in it relating to the inspection of lodging-houses and the withdrawal of licenses in cases of the breaking out of sickness or disease, or where the lodging-houses were not found fit for the purposes for which they were licensed; and by section 11 the magistrate was empowered to exempt any particular lodging-house from inspection in cases where, from the respectability or otherwise of the occasional lodgers, inspection was not deemed necessary, and where such persons would naturally, from their rank and position, resent the inspectional interference of the medical officers.

Section 13 made it compulsory on the keeper of every lodging-house to report all cases of death, grave accident, or serious illness, and some other kinds of necessary information.

There had been introduced at the end of the Bill certain provisions which were not contained in the draft submitted by the sanitary commissioner and the commissioner of the division: they merely contained sanitary clauses similar to those of some of our municipal Acts, instead of leaving all such matters to be settled by rules to be drawn up by the magistrate. Those provisions were unobjectionable, and had already been repeatedly introduced in our municipal Acts. He had also, in section 38, provided for the making of bye-laws by the magistrate with the sanction of the health officer. The question had been discussed as to whether there should not be a provision for the appointment of a town committee to whom might be entrusted the duty of carrying out the Act; but after consulting those connected with the town, he had come to the conclusion that it would be difficult to get a committee of sufficient influence and intelligence to work the Act, and it had therefore been determined to confer on the magistrate and health officer the necessary powers.

By section 40 the Lieutenant-Governor had power to extend the Act to other towns in Orissa to which pilgrims resorted. In some of those places the state of things was almost as bad as at Pooree in regard to sanitation, and he believed it was intended to extend the law at once to Jajipore.

MR. MONEY said there were one or two remarks that had suggested themselves to him with reference to one portion of the Bill. He observed from a memorandum by the commissioner of the division that the plan for licensing lodging-houses was but a part of a regular scheme for the sanitation of the town of Pooree; and though he thought that the Bill, so far as it went, was one that ought to receive support, he would be glad to have an assurance that another measure, which formed a component part of the scheme sketched out, would also be carried out. The commissioner, after recommending that the proposed measure for the licensing of lodging-houses should be passed, went on, in paragraph 11, to speak of extra accommodation for those pilgrims who could not be accommodated in the licensed lodging-houses: and on looking at a subsequent part of the memorandum, viz. paragraph 17, he found the commissioner speaking as follows of what would be the result of the pressure necessary for the establishment of serais along the road to Pooree:—

"The house-holder and petty shop-keepers in these road-side villages are for the most part poor. They have no capital to build better accommodation, and if they were hard-pressed by local authorities and made conform to the strict rules and regulations of the Serais Act, the probable result would be that they would vacate and leave the village with less actual shelter than it had before."

It appeared to him (Mr. Money) that it was very possible that a result of the same kind would take place in Pooree, and that only a small proportion of the pilgrims would find accommodation in the licensed lodging-houses. The memorandum of the commissioner did not give detailed information of what the number of pilgrims was; but he says—

"There are estimated to be about 6,336 houses in Pooree, and about 25,000 resident inhabitants. The probable average number of pilgrims is estimated to be about 50,000, though I think this is below the mark. We have no recent statistics, but between the years 1816 to 1829 the attendance of pilgrims was between a minimum of 66,000 and a maximum of 1,64,000, or a rough average of 1,25,000."

The commissioner then supposes that one-half of the house-holders would take out licenses for lodging-houses, and that such houses would accommodate an average of ten lodgers to each house. If the figures are reliable, this would give a total of 31,680 pilgrims provided for; whereas it was stated that the average number of pilgrims was 50,000, and that that was a low average. It seemed to him (Mr. Money) therefore that it would be desirable for the Council to know that in connection with this Bill it was intended to provide some accommodation for those pilgrims who would under the operation of this Bill lose a portion of the shelter, however bad it might be, which they now had.

The HON'BLE ASHLEY EDEN said that he believed he had already stated that one of the objects of the Bill was to obtain funds for the purpose of erecting sheds for the accommodation of those pilgrims who could not be accommodated in the lodging-houses licensed under the Bill; and a perusal of the report of the sanitary commissioner would show that one of the chief points of the scheme was to provide proper accommodation, not only at Pooree, but on the road leading to the town. In the memorandum of the commissioner of the division there was a long detailed list of the places at which it was proposed to provide such accommodation. Some of these had indeed already been erected by private munificence, and something had been done during this year to provide accommodation for pilgrims during the festivals.

With reference to the apprehension expressed in regard to the deficiency of accommodation under the Act, it was true that it was stated in the commissioner's memorandum that probably 50,000 was a low average of the number of pilgrims that annually resorted to Pooree, and that the estimate showed that 30,000 only would be provided for in the licensed lodging-houses, yet he (Mr. Eden) thought it was a great mistake to suppose that 50,000 pilgrims congregated at Pooree at one and the same time, and that the requirements for the accommodation should be based on any such calculation. What was meant was that 50,000 pilgrims visited Pooree during the year. Although, no doubt, the greater number of these pilgrims were there during a particular part of the year, there was no reason to suppose that the whole 50,000 were there actually at the same time. There were several religious festivals held at Pooree, and many of the pilgrims only remained for a few days, moving on to other shrines, others taking their place. However, as he said before, it was intended, if possible, by the means to which he had alluded, to provide such accommodation as would be required in addition to the lodging-houses to be licensed under the Bill.

The PRESIDENT said, the fact that the whole number of pilgrims were not present at the same time would be seen if hon'ble members would turn to pages 10 and 11 of the second Part of this Blue Book (Report of the Sanitary Commissioner for Bengal on the pilgrimage to Juggernath), where it was mentioned that in 1864-65 the attendance at the great festival was 40,000, and in the following year 45,000, that since the number had been decreasing, and that there was a tendency to decrease, and Dr. Smith gave it as his opinion that the annual attendance at Pooree was not more than 50,000.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a Select Committee, consisting of Mr. Schalch, Baboo Digumber Mitter, Moulvy Abdool Luteef, and the mover Mr. Eden, with instructions to report within three weeks.

DRAINAGE AND IRRIGATION OF DISTRICTS.

The Hon'ble Ashley Eden moved that the time prescribed for the submission of the report of the Select Committee on the Bill to facilitate the drainage and irrigation of districts in Bengal be extended for three weeks. He said that the period within which the Committee were instructed to submit their report, three weeks, had now expired. On going through the Bill the Committee found great difficulty in settling the working details, and had to recast the Bill and alter its scope so as to make it entirely a local Bill applicable to particular swamps in the Hooghly district. He hoped that the Committee would be able to report within ten days more, and therefore asked for an extension of three weeks.

The motion was agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 28th instant.

Cattle Disease.

From His Grace the Duke of Argyll, K.T., Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India, to His Excellency the Right Hon'ble the Governor General of India in Council,—
(No. 113, dated India Office, London, the 24th November 1870.)

The despatches from your Excellency in Council, Nos. 54 and 57, dated the 17th and 20th of May last, with their enclosures, having been transmitted to the veterinary department of Her Majesty's Privy Council, and referred by that department to Professor Simonds, I have to inform your Lordship in Council that, after a very careful consideration of the history, symptoms, and post-mortem appearances of the disease as given by the cattle plague commissioners in India, Professor Simonds states that he is unable to arrive at the conclusion that the disease investigated by them in the Bengal presidency is identical with the cattle plague of Europe.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the corresponding temperatures given in column 17. For stations of above 500 feet elevation, the reduction is made by Dippe's tables as given in Guyot's "Meteorological and Physical Tables."

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17, on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahr. for every 350 feet.

Wind Direction.—The mean wind direction and its comparative prevalence are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the half-month. The latter is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The mean direction is calculated in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the half-month which shall shew the isobaric and isothermal lines, and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The primary object of this Bill is to consolidate the eight Acts in which the law relating to the customs-duties leviable on goods (including salt and opium) imported or exported by sea, is now inconveniently contained.

At the same time the following amendments have been made in the substance of the law.

A section (3) has been introduced to provide for the case of goods of which a part or ingredient is liable to duty. This provision is taken from 23 & 24 Vic., c. 110.

Asphalte is introduced into schedule A, and charged with a duty of seven and a half per cent. on a value of twenty rupees per ton.

Articles intended for the permanent way of railways are admitted at one per cent. ad valorem.

The Bill also incorporates the recent orders of the Government of India in the Financial Department respecting (a) betel-nut, (b) kerosine and other oils, (c) timber and woods, and (d) the exemption from export-duties of articles which have been imported by sea.

and transmitted to Engineer.

XXIII. The Collector shall transmit such application to the Engineer, who shall pass such order thereon as he shall think fit, which order shall be final.

Applicant to agree to defray cost.

XXIV. If the construction of the proposed sluice receive the approval of the Engineer, the Collector shall require the applicant to enter into a written agreement to defray the whole or half of the expense, or such portion thereof as may be determined under the provisions of Section XXII as the case may be, and upon such agreement being executed, shall issue a certificate to the officer in charge of the public embankments of the district to construct the sluice.

Deposit to be forfeited if agreement not executed.

XXV. If, after the construction of the proposed sluice has received the approval of the Engineer, the applicant shall on any grounds refuse to sign the written agreement mentioned in the previous clause, the fee of twenty-five Rupees prescribed in Section XXII shall become the absolute property of the Government; but in case he shall sign such agreement, such fee of twenty-five Rupees shall be taken in part payment of any sum which may become payable by him under such agreement.

Sluices to be opened under authority of the Engineer.

XXVI. Sluices constructed in any public embankment shall be opened only by or with the permission of the officer in the immediate charge of the embankment, under such orders, either general or special, as he may receive from the Engineer.

Costs of works to be levied from owners of lands benefited.

XXVII. The costs of the construction, maintenance, and repairs of all works executed under the powers and provisions of this Act or any of them shall be borne by the owners of the lands benefited thereby, and shall be recovered from them as if the same were arrears of Government revenue.

Cost of land acquired for embankment where lands of different owners benefited.

XXVIII. Where lands the property of different owners, or in which different persons are interested, will in the opinion of the Collector derive benefit from the construction, alteration, or extension of any public embankment or drainage, or of any sluice in any public embankment, or from any other works executed under the provisions of this Act, it shall be lawful for such Collector to charge the cost of such construction, alteration, or extension, including the cost of any land required for the purpose thereof and the expense attending its acquisition, upon the persons so deriving such benefit rateably in the proportion of the benefit derived by such lands respectively and of their respective interests in the benefit so to be derived. Before assessing such contribution, the Collector shall cause a notice to be served on each of such persons, in which it shall be stated what land is being taken, and the purpose for which it is required, and that the lands of such person will derive benefit from the execution of the works, and giving him notice that an inquiry will be held, at a day and place to be named, for the purpose of apportioning amongst the persons whose lands will be benefited by the intended works the cost thereof including the cost of any land required therefor and the expense of acquiring it. In case such person does not reside within the district in which his lands are situate, the notice may be served upon his Agent, or if he has no Agent therein it will be sufficient to affix the notice upon some conspicuous part of his estate.

Mode of enquiry as to the proportion chargeable to each estate.

XXIX. On the day fixed in the notice, which shall not be less than one month later than the date of service of such notice, the Collector shall proceed to make the necessary enquiry for the determination of the proportion in which the estates affected by the construction, extension, or alteration of the embankment will be benefited thereby, In making this enquiry he shall receive such evidence as may be tendered by or on behalf of the owners of estates which may appear likely to be benefited by the construction, extension, or alteration of the embankment as aforesaid, and by or on behalf of any other persons who may claim to be interested in the said enquiry, and he may make or cause to be made such local investigation, and call for such documents and examine such witnesses, as he may think necessary; and all the provisions of the law for the time being in force in regard to the examination of witnesses and production of documents in judicial proceedings, shall be applicable to enquiries conducted by the Collector under this Act.

No appeal from Collector's award: but one owner may recover from another who has not been assessed or who has been under-assessed.

XXX. The Collector shall and may, after such enquiry, make an award in which he shall find and state the names of the persons whose lands will be or are benefited by the construction, alteration, or extension of such embankment and the proportion of the cost thereof, and including the cost of any land required therefor, the expense of its acquisition, and the cost of the said enquiry, which they ought respectively to bear. No appeal shall lie from the award of the Collector. But it shall be competent to the owner of any land assessed to a large amount than his fair proportion, to recover such excess in the Civil Court from the owner of any land or estate benefited thereby, upon whom no assessment has been made or a smaller amount has been assessed than ought to have been awarded against him. Provided that in such suit no more shall be recovered from any person than the amount to which he ought to have been assessed where he has not been required to contribute, or the amount by which the sum he was required to pay was less than his fair proportion where he has been required to contribute.

Expenses of acquiring land what included in.

XXXI. There shall be included in the expense of acquiring the land so to be distributed amongst the persons benefited, not only the compensation awarded to the owner of the land taken, including interest at the rate of six per centum per annum from the time when the land was taken, but also the cost of surveys and plans, of notices of the said inquiry, and award, and all other costs, charges and expenses incident to obtaining possession of such land. The amount so awarded shall and may be recovered from the person so required to pay the same, in the same way and by the same means as arrears of Government revenue.

Disposal of lands no longer required for embankments.

XXXII. Whenever, in consequence of the construction or alteration of any public embankment, the maintenance of any other public embankment or the retention of any land appropriated to the purposes thereof, may no longer be required, and the permanent relinquishment of the same may be deemed expedient by the Engineer, it shall be lawful for the Collector to dispose of the site of the embankment or of the land so abandoned, by public sale, and all the provisions of the law for the time being in force in regard to sales of land in default of payment of the Government revenue, shall be applicable, so far as the same may be reasonably applied, to sales under the provisions of this Section. The proceeds of such sales shall, after the payment of all expenses incurred on account of the same, be applied to the payment of the cost of any new embankment or drainage works affecting the said lands, and in such case the residue only of the cost of such new works shall be charged upon the owners of lands benefited as hereinbefore provided. Provided that it shall not be competent to the Collector to sell, in the manner aforesaid, any land which shall not have been taken up for embankment purposes under the provisons of this Act.

Collector may delegate any of his powers to a Deputy Collector.

XXXIII. A Collector may delegate any of his powers under this Act to a Deputy Collector, but from any order passed by a Deputy Collector to whom powers have been so delegated an appeal shall lie to the Collector, if presented within fifteen days of the date of the order.

If the proposed work is to be executed by an officer of Government, the applicant, before the commencement of the work, shall enter into a written agreement to defray the expenses of, and incident to, making such road-way, or of making and closing or removing such water-course or dam. In any case of emergency the officer in immediate charge of an embankment, subject to such general instructions as he may receive from the officer in charge of the embankments of the District, or from the Engineer, may cause a temporary water-course to be made through such embankment

Penalty on unauthorised interference with embankments or drainage.

XXXVI. Every person who, without the previous permission of the Collector obtained as hereinafter set forth, shall erect, or cause or wilfully permit to be erected, any new embankment, or shall obstruct or divert, or cause or wilfully permit to be obstructed or diverted, any drainage channel, shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding five hundred Rupees, or in default of payment to imprisonment for six months.

Proceedings to obtain new embankment or drainage.

XXXVII. Whenever any landholder, farmer, or cultivator is desirous of erecting any new embankment, or of obstructing or diverting any drainage channel, he shall apply to the Collector, and at the time of making such application shall deposit with him a statement of the proprosed works, and the Collector shall thereupon cause a notice of the same to be affixed in some conspicuous part of the neighbourhood where such work is proposed, to enable all who may be interested therein to offer any objection they may have to prefer. After the expiration of one month after the posting of such notice, the Engineer shall consider the proposed work and any objection thereto, and in case he shall be of opinion that no injury to the public or to individuals not consenting to the proposed work could result therefrom, he shall certify his opinion to the Collector, who may thereupon, unless he shall differ in opinion from the Engineer, give to the applicant permission by a license under his hand.

Copies of the specifications and estimates shall be transmitted to the office of the Collector, and may be examined by any person interested in the embankments. Notice of the receipt of the specifications and estimates shall be posted up in the Collector's Office; and should any objection be preferred by any such person within a period of one month from the date of such notice, the Collector shall communicate the objection, with his own opinion thereupon, to the Engineer, who shall pass such orders as may appear to him reasonable and proper. Provided, however, that if the objection refer to the construction of sluices or other new works, any person dissatisfied with the order of the Engineer may appeal to the Commissioner, who, subject to the orders of the Board of Revenue and of Government, may disallow the construction of the work.

Preparation and settlement of accounts.

XL. The accounts of the actual expense incurred in maintaining or improving embankments, drainage cuts, or other works or repairs executed under the provisions of this Act, the expense of which is wholly or in part chargeable to individuals, and in constructing and repairing sluices and making temporary water-courses or roadways through or over any public embankment, or executing any other work the expense of which may be chargeable to individuals, shall be prepared as soon as possible after the completion of such works, and shall, as soon as such accounts shall have received the sanction of the Engineer, be forwarded to the Office of the Collector, and may be there examined by any person interested. Notice of the receipt of the accounts shall be posted up in the Collector's Office; and if, within one month from the date of such notice, any interested person shall object to the accounts on the ground either that the work charged for has not been performed, or that the whole sum charged has not been expended, or that the rates of charge are higher than the estimate, the Collector shall enquire into such objection, and if the objection appear to be well founded, shall communicate the same with his opinion thereon to the Engineer. If the Engineer concur with the Collector, he shall pass orders accordingly; if he differ, the case shall be reported to the Commissioner, whose decision shall be final. When the objection shall have been finally disposed of, or, if no objection be preferred, when a full month shall have elapsed from the date of notice, the Collector shall proceed to levy the amount from the parties liable to pay the same, by any process which is or may for the time being be in force for the recovery of arrears of Government revenue.

Power to remove houses.

XLI. Whenever the Engineer shall be of opinion that the removal of any houses, huts, or other buildings situated between a public embankment and the river is necessary, he shall make a report to that effect, accompanied by a detailed statement of the houses, huts, or other buildings to be removed, to the Collector of the District in whose jurisdiction the land on which such houses, huts, or other buildings stand is situated, and the Collector shall report the same to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, in order that proceedings may be taken under the provisions of the said Act X of 1870, for obtaining possession of such houses, huts, and buildings, and the ground on which they stand. Provided always that in case the Engineer be of opinion that the delay required by such proceedings is likely to be attended with grave and imminent danger to life or property, it shall be lawful for him forthwith to cause such houses, huts, or buildings to be removed, and in such case such houses, huts, and buildings and the ground on which they stand, shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to have been taken in execution of the provisions of this Act.

XLIV. The Collector shall thereupon report the claim to the Commissioner of the Division, and shall within two months pass an order thereon, either admitting that compensation is to be made, or rejecting the application.

If no order made, power to sue.

XLV. If no order upon such application be passed within two months from the presentation of such petition, or if an order be passed rejecting the same, the claimant may, notwithstanding anything in this Act contained, bring such action as he may be advised in any Court which would have been competent to entertain such action if this Act had not been passed; provided that such action shall be brought within twelve months from the presentation of such petition of claim so to be preferred.

Proceeding where parties do not agree.

XLVI. If the order admits that compensation in respect of the land or property so taken or injuriously affected is to be made, but the Collector and the claimant cannot agree respecting the amount of the compensation to be made, or the person entitled to receive the same, the Collector shall proceed, in manner directed in this Part of the Act, to ascertain the amount of such compensation, and the person entitled to receive the same.

Notice to be served on all claimants.

XLVII. The Collector shall serve notice upon every person who shall have made any claim under the provisions of Section XLIII, and upon the occupiers of any of the land or property mentioned in such claim, and the persons in actual enjoyment of the rights or in actual possession of the moveable property taken or used in respect of which such claim shall have been made, and on all persons known or believed to be interested in such land or property or rights or moveable property or to be entitled to act for persons so interested.

or if any person whom the Collector has reason to think interested does not attend; or if the Collector is unable to agree with the persons interested who have attended in pursuance of the notice as to the amount of compensation to be allowed;

or if upon the said enquiry any question respecting the title to the land or any rights thereto or interests therein arise between or among two or more persons making conflicting claims in respect thereof;

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

This Bill has two primary objects, one, to consolidate the law relating to Pleaders, Mukhtárs and Revenue Agents, the other, to amend that law so far as it relates to agreements between certain legal practitioners and their clients.

In Bengal, the North-Western Provinces, the Panjáb and Oudh, the law on the subject is contained in three Acts (XX of 1865, XXIX of 1865 and IX of 1866): in the Presidencies of Madras and Bombay it is contained in Acts I of 1846, XX of 1853, Madras Regulation XIV of 1816, and Bombay Regulation II of 1827, chapter VI; in the Panjáb, Act IV of 1866 (sections ten, eleven, twelve, forty-four and fifty-one) contains some special provisions as to Pleaders in the Chief Court and their fees; and in British Burma the Recorders' Courts Act XXI of 1863 (sections sixteen, seventeen and eighteen) contains similar provisions. The Central Provinces and all British Burma outside the local limits of the Recorders' jurisdiction appear to be devoid of any law on the subject.

The present Bill consolidates and extends to the whole of British India such of the provisions of Acts XX of 1865 and XXIX of 1865 as appear to be generally applicable to the country.

With regard to agreements for remuneration between clients and their legal advisers, Act XX of 1865, section thirty-nine, permits such agreements to be made, and declares that they shall not be enforced otherwise than by regular suit. This provision, which has been held to place such agreements on the same footing as an ordinary contract between private persons, has, for obvious reasons, not worked satisfactorily. A flagrant instance of the evil of the present law is furnished by the recent case of Nuthoo Lall v. Budree Pershad, 1 Allahabad Reports 1; and though the High Court there held that it was not the duty of the lower Courts to decree (as they had done), on mere proof of the contract, the enforcement of an extortionate bargain between a pleader and his client, the legislature should not leave so important a rule to depend on the decision of a single High Court. The Bill repeals the section in question, and replaces it by a set of provisions modelled on the recent English Statute 33 & 34 Vic., Cap. 28 (to amend the law relating to the remuneration of Attorneys and Solicitors), sections four, six, seven, eight, nine, eleven, thirteen and fourteen.

Section thirty-three of the Bill declares that pleaders, &c., may make agreements as to their remuneration, but that the amount agreed on shall not be paid until the agreement has been examined and allowed by an officer of the High Court or of the District Court. The Court is empowered either to reduce the amount or to order the agreement to be cancelled. The agreement (section thirty-four) will exclude further claims in respect of the business therein referred to. Provisions relieving the pleader, &c., from liability for negligence will be void (section thirty-five). No suits are to be brought on such agreements, but on petition of either party the Court may enforce or set it aside (section thirty-six). The Bill then declares void (a) purchases by a pleader of his client's interest in future suits or in unsatisfied decrees, and (b) agreements by which the pleader stipulates for payment only in the event of success. Provision is made (section thirty-eight) for the case of the pleader's death or incapacity, and the client is empowered (section thirty-nine) to change his pleader notwithstanding such agreement.

The other novel provisions of the Bill are only two.

At the recommendation of the Government of Bengal, all Mukhtárs are restored to the privilege of appearing, pleading and acting in Criminal Courts, which they formerly enjoyed under Act XX of 1865, and Mukhtárs heretofore admitted and enrolled in Lower Bengal as Revenue Agents are empowered (section seven) to appear and act in suits in Munsifs' Courts under Bengal Act VIII of 1869 (to amend the procedure in suits between landlord and tenant).

Penalties are provided (section forty-five) for Advocates, Pleaders and Mukhtárs removed or suspended by a High Court who practise after such removal or during such suspension.

Provided further that all reports by such delegated Officer shall be submitted to the Engineer before they shall be forwarded to the Collector or any other authority, and that no such report shall become binding or conclusive for one month after it shall have been so submitted.

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

The attention of Government was drawn in 1868 to the injuries which had been sustained in the district of the 24-Pergunnahs from inundation, owing to certain obstructions which had been erected in a drainage channel, and the removal of which the magistrate stated could not be effected until the requisite legal formalities had been complied with; admitting at the same time that the removal of the obstructions was necessary for the public good, and it was considered that the existing law was not sufficiently stringent to meet such cases.

The opinion of qualified local officers was called for as to the points on which the present Embankment Act requires amendment, and in giving effect to those amendments it is deemed expedient to consolidate the existing laws for the acquisition of land, for the construction of embankments, and for their maintenance.

The objects sought to be attained by the modifications proposed in the existing laws are to extend the provisions of the Act so as to include within their operation the drainage of tracts of country which may be intimately connected with embankments; to include under the definition of "embankments" works which, though not embankments, are strictly accessories to embankments and without which it is impossible to secure the stability of the latter; to provide for the removal of impediments to drainage, and for the construction of works necessary to the drainage as well as to the protection from inundation of any land; to give greater facilities of action in cases when delay may be attended with grave and imminent danger to life and property; to provide compensation for injury or loss to individuals caused by such action; to secure the more effective maintenance of private embankments, and to determine more equitably the mode in which the cost therefor incurred should be recoverable from the parties liable to pay the same, or from those benefited by such works; and lastly, to secure by more stringent penalties, embankments, and drainage works from wilful injury.

To render the Act more complete, the provisions of the existing laws for the acquisition of land required for works of the description specified in the Act have been incorporated therewith.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

DURING certain religious festivals at the town of Pooree and other places in Orissa, the lodging-houses to which pilgrims resort are much over-crowded, and are in many respects wholly unsuited for human habitation. The sanitary arrangements urgently required for preserving the health of the large number of pilgrims are altogether wanting, and much disease and mortality has arisen in consequence, and has been spread throughout the towns and districts through which the pilgrims pass on their return. It is therefore proposed to pass an Act for the regulation of the lodging-houses, and for raising by fees for licenses on the owners of such houses a sum which shall be taken as a contribution to the conservancy fund of the town of Pooree. The fund it is also intended to increase by other measures unconnected with the Bill, and it is hoped that by these means such sanitary improvements may be undertaken at the towns in which the shrines are situated, and on the roads leading to these towns, as shall tend materially to check the sickness and disease so fatal to the pilgrims.

PENSIONS AND GRATUITIES.

Fort William, the 20th January 1871.

No. 423.—Resolution.—The Governor General in Council observes that the admission into the service of Government of other than young men tends to throw upon the State an undue liability in respect of pensionary allowances.

His Excellency in Council is accordingly pleased to declare that, as a general rule, no person should be admitted into the Uncovenanted Service of Government after he has attained the age of 25 years. But if, for special reasons, any one is after this date admitted at a later age, then, in the event of his being required to retire under the operation of any rule for the removal of Officers from the service as superannuated on their attaining a particular age, the pension to which he would, but for this rule be entitled, shall be reduced in the proportion which the number of years of pensionable service he has completed bears to 30 years, the full period required for a good service pension.

For instance, if an Officer so retiring has completed 20 years' service, then his pension will be one-third of his average pay multiplied by $\frac{20}{30}$; if he has completed 26 years, then it will be half his average pay multiplied by $\frac{26}{30}$.

Ordered, that the above Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

MINT AND CURRENCY.

Fort William, the 24th January 1871.

No. 451.—Rules prescribed by the Governor General of India in Council in exercise of the powers conferred by the Indian Coinage Act (No. XXIII), 1870, Sections 16 and 28 :—

1. All Officers in charge of Government Treasuries, and Commissioners, Deputy or Assistant Commissioners of the Paper Currency Department are hereby authorized to act under the Act and Sections named above.

2. On the tender to any such Officer of silver coin purporting to be that of the Government of India, he shall, if he has reason to believe that it is genuine coin, but has been called in by proclamation, or has lost by reasonable wearing more than 2 per cent. in weight, by himself or another cut or break the coin, and either return the pieces to the person tendering the coin, or, at the option of the latter, receive it at the rate of one rupee per tola.

3. If such Officer has reason to believe the coin to be counterfeit, or to have been reduced in weight otherwise than by reasonable wearing, he shall cut or break the coin and return the pieces to the person tendering it.

4. All Officers condemning coin under these rules must personally see it cut or broken and rendered unfit for currency.

These rules, so far as they relate to light weight coins, must be considered permissive. It is not the desire of Government to interfere with the circulation of good coin which passes unquestioned in currency, even though it may in exceptional cases have lost something more than 2 per cent. by fair wear. On the other hand, where there is reason to suspect reduction of weight by other means, and still more in the case of counterfeit coin, the law should be rigidly enforced.

Published by order of the Governor General of India in Council.

STAMPS.

From J. WESTLAND, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(dated Fort William, the 28th December 1870.)

WITH reference to your letter noted on the margin, to the address of the Home Secretary, on the subject of the levy of Stamp-duty under the Court Fees' Act on applications made by telegraph, I am directed to state that the Governor General in Council is of opinion that telegraphic messages should be regarded as oral communications, and consequently applications made by telegraph should not be liable to Stamp-duty under the Act. As no public Officer would take final action on an unauthenticated telegram, the telegraphic message would be followed by the transmission of a copy or other written communication of its contents chargeable with Stamp-duty under the Act, and thus the requirements of the law will be met.

RECOVERY OF LAND REVENUE IN ASSAM.

MR. RIVERS THOMPSON, in moving for leave to bring in a Bill "for the recovery of land revenue and the mutation of names in Assam," said he would explain briefly the circumstances which made necessary a recourse to legislation on this subject. It had been for some time under the consideration of the Government to frame rules for the revenue administration of the Assam province. In Assam the whole proprietary right in the soil might be said to be vested in the Government, and the system in force since our acquisition of that province had been to make an annual settlement directly with the ryots for the lands in the villages occupied by them. For making these settlements, as well as for collecting the Government demands, a class of agents termed "mouzadars" were employed in every district, who did not necessarily hold any interest in the soil themselves, but who were employed much in the same manner as tehsildars in the north-west provinces, in arranging for the settlement of villages, and in the realization of the Government revenue. For such duties they received a percentage ont he collections made by them on behalf of Government. These mouzadars were either in charge of a single village, if the village was a large one; or of a circle of villages, if the villages were small. As far as he (Mr. Thompson) understood, the practice had been, on the occurrence of a default in the payment of revenue, for the mouzadar to report the circumstances of the case to the district officer, who thereupon proceeded to summon the defaulter, and after a certain allowed time if the money was not paid in, to attach the property of the defaulter, or to arrest and imprison him. There was reason to believe that under the light assessment which prevailed in Assam, the Government demand was punctually settled, and resort to such measures had very seldom been found necessary. It might, however, be noted that the procedure under which the authorities acted in cases of arrears of revenue, even if it was uniform throughout the province, had this defect, that it had never received the sanction of the legislature, and was merely followed out under rules of practice which had been in force for many years.

This was ascertained more precisely on the Lieutenant-Governor's recent visit to Assam, when the general rules submitted by the commissioner for the revenue administration of the province received the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor as being passable by the executive Government. These referred generally to the appointment and removal of the mouzadars, the procedure in making the yearly settlements, and the determination of the rates of assessment. It was, however, pointed out to the commissioner that the practice under which, in default of payment of the Government demand, recourse was had to fine and imprisonment, could not be enforced without law. Accordingly a reference was made to the local officers, and to the rules prepared by the commissioner and revised by the Board of Revenue, embodying with some slight modifications the procedure now in force, it was proposed to give legal sanction by an Act of this council. Occasion had been taken, on the recommendation of the local authorities, to add to the Bill certain sections, prescribing the course to be observed in cases connected with the mutation of names. It was found to be a not uncommon practice for a ryot to resign his holding during the currency of a settlement without giving any notice to the district officers. Also, on the occasion of the death or absence of a ryot, other persons came forward to take possession of the vacated lands, and in many instances without any right to do so. It was therefore thought proper to legalize by registration all transfers of holdings which a ryot might wish to relinquish, and provision would be made on the subject in the present Bill.

If leave was given to bring in the Bill, he would take an early opportunity to explain the form which it was proposed to give it.

The motion was agreed to.

RECOVERY OF FINES.

Moulvy Abdool Lutelf moved for leave to bring in a Bill "to facilitate the recovery of fines imposed in Bengal." In doing so he said he begged to state the circumstances under which he was induced to propose the introduction of the Bill, and the objects proposed to be attained by the same. By section 4 of Act V. of 1867 of this Council, passed on the 30th of May of that year, the provisions of sections 63 to 70 of the Indian Penal Code, and of section 61 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, were made applicable to all fines which might be imposed under the authority of any Act thereafter to be passed by this Council, but the provisions of the sections of the Penal Code which he had mentioned were not made to apply to fines imposed under the authority of any Act the Council passed previously to the passing of that Act. His object was to get an Act passed by which this difficulty might be removed, for, as he would presently explain, considerable difficulty had been experienced by judicial and executive authorities in enforcing penalties imposed under the authority of Acts passed previously to June 1867. As an illustration, he would mention that the municipal commissioners for the suburbs of Calcutta had found it exceedingly difficult—nay, almost impossible—to carry out the provisions of Act VII. of 1865 for the better regulation of slaughter-houses. The result was that the Act in question had proved perfectly powerless. That Act provides penalties on persons using as a slaughter-house places not licensed as such, and so forth. It had been found that two of the largest slaughter-houses in the suburbs, which were the property of wealthy men, had been given on leases to men of straw, and these latter were held to be the parties who were actually using them within the meaning of that Act. These men had applied for licenses and had been refused; but notwithstanding such refusal they had, in defiance of the law, been openly using these slaughter-houses, and on being convicted for a breach of the provisions of the Act and sentenced to pay heavy fines, it was found that they had no movable property which could be distrained and sold for the recovery of the fines under the provisions of section 61 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which was the only means provided for the realization of such fines, and the result was that the slaughter-houses in question were to the present moment carried on in full vigour in open defiance of the law, for the law was quite incapable of enforcing its penalties.

It seemed useless to pass an Act and make a breach of its provisions punishable by fines if there be no means to enforce the penalties attached to the offence. He thought that this difficulty would be met by passing a short Act of the nature he had proposed, and he therefore begged to move for leave to bring in this bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 4th February.

Report on the Alooakhooa Mela.

From J. H. RAVENSHAW, Esq., Officiating Collector and Magistrate of Dinagepore, to the Commissioner of Revenue, Rajshahye Division, Berhampore,—(No. 15Ct., dated Camp Mohipaul, the 17th December 1870.)

I HAVE the honor to submit the following report on the Alooakhooa méla which is just concluded.

2. This fair takes place annually at the above-mentioned place. It has now been established for some years, and of late has greatly increased in proportion, and bids fair to rival the well known Nekmurd méla. It commences at the full moon in Kartick this year, falling on the 8th November. It is held on the property of Baboo Ramprosaud Roy.

3. I determined this year on visiting it to institute such sanitary measures as were practicable. I reached the fair on the 7th November with the district superintendent, and found that inspector Huri Churun had carried out fully the orders I had given him on the subject.

4. In the first place, broad streets were marked out with flags from north to south and east to west, each from 24 to 30 feet wide. All booths and shops were erected on these lines in regular order, and no encroachments allowed. Latrines were provided to leeward at some distance, and all nuisances within a marked limit were specially forbidden; proclamation to this effect being notified by beat of drum every few hours. As the fair increased in dimension the roads were extended on all directions, thereby affording a plentiful and free current of air. The municipal darogah, with twelve coolies and eight mehters, looked after the conservancy. The most scrupulous cleanliness was observed. The streets were kept constantly clean and swept frequently, and all offal and dirt collected and immediately buried. I remained at the fair till the 13th, and even after so many days not the slightest bad smell was observable, notwithstanding the vast concourse of people and the thousands of head of cattle present. I visited every portion of the fair twice daily, and the most perfect order prevailed. Some difficulty at first resulted in enforcing the conservancy arrangements, and small fines of from two to eight annas were inflicted in many cases before the necessity of using the latrines was fully comprehended and the determination to prevent encroachments on the roads understood. A hospital was erected on a convenient spot, which was presided over by native doctor Ruheem Buksh.

5. Not a single death took place during the fair among the large concourse, estimated at from 60 to 80,000 people; no sickness of any kind of a severe nature occurred; and even among the cattle I could hear of no loss. I had a watch carefully kept on all cattle entering the méla, as the foot and mouth disease had been to some extent prevalent in the district, and, I had heard, very servely towards Darjeeling, though no cattle were stopped as no case of disease shewed itself.

6. The order preserved was very creditable to the police and also to the populace. Inspector Huri Churun exerted himself to the utmost, and deserves great credit. The whole of the arrangements were under his immediate supervision.

7. The gang of bad characters usually attached to such gatherings were either absent or deterred by the police arrangements from carrying out their predatory habits; but three cases of petty theft were brought before me, and the prisoners in each were convicted and flogged in the centre of the fair. One case of personation of a constable took place; but the plaintiff was induced to abscond by some parties from Purneah connected with the prisoner. The méla is on the Purneah borders, and next year I think the Purneah police should attend and assist in keeping order.

8. Baboo Tarini Prosaud Rai, the landowner, gave every assistance in a most willing manner. He thoroughly appreciated the advantages of the measures undertaken, and has supplied me with all the statistical information that is alluded to in this report. He has promised to make the roads roughly marked out this year permanent, so that for the future there may be no further necessity for laying them out. He also wishes to make a road to the méla from the imperial road about five miles distant, but has been deterred from doing so by the other zemindars through whose lands it will pass. This matter will probably be the subject of a future communication. I did not think proper to take any measures regarding prostitutes, as I had no European medical officer present. Some few were at the méla, and were informed they would not be molested as long as they conducted themselves quietly and with outward propriety.

9. I will now pass to the more statistical part of the report. The general part of the fair, by which I allude to the booths and shops, occupied probably two miles of road. All were carefully arranged according to their trades. The extension of the roads through the cattle pastures was probably double. Very large sales of cloth, beads, and brass utensils, took place.

10. Of elephants brought for sale, most were quite small but realized very large sums. The minutest animal, scarce able to carry his mahout, fetched Rs. 1,100.

11. The horse mart was very small, and no animals worth purchase were present; but the native tatoo were very numerous, and found ready sales. The cattle market was more extensive than the whole of the rest of the fair, and covered, I should think, at least a square mile of land. Very ready sale was found for bullocks, which realized various prices from Rs. 15 to 60. Of buffaloes also there was a fine show, but milch cows were neither numerous nor remarkable for their excellence.

12. The accompanying statement will shew the estimated number of all products and live-stock attending the fair and sold, with a rough calculation of the prices realized. The shop-keepers paid the zemindar four and half annas per hut for their shops, and vendors of cattle so much on their sales. All sales were duly registered by the zemindar. The total absence of receipt stamps attracted my attention. I think this matter should be rigorously enforced for the future, and a vendor sent to the fair with a full supply for distribution.

13. All expenses for conservancy and medical aid were charged on the zemindars, who readily paid them. A memorandum is attached shewing the entire cost.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 4th February 1871, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report within six weeks :—

A Bill to provide for the recovery of Land Revenue and the Mutation of Names in Assam.

Preamble.

WHEREAS there is not any sufficient provision for the recovery of Government revenue payable in respect of lands in Assam, nor any sufficient provision for the mutation of names, or remission of revenue therein: It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Arrears of assessment.

I. Any instalment of assessment which is not paid to the person entitled to receive the same on or before the day on which such assessment is payable according to the rules for the administration of land revenue in Assam, and which date shall be specified in the pottah, shall be held to be an arrear of assessment.

List of defaulters to be prepared and notice given to defaulters.

II. The mouzadar or other officer to whom the amount of assessment is payable shall, within a month after the expiration of the last day of payment, prepare and forward to the district or sub-divisional officer a list, in such form as the Lieutenant-Governor may by an order direct, of all defaulting ryots showing the amount due from each. Upon receiving the list, the district or sub-divisional officer shall issue a separate notice, in such form as the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal may by an order direct, to each defaulter, warning him that unless the whole amount due, together with any expenses incurred by reason of his default, and cost incurred in serving the notice, be paid within ten days from the date of the notice being served upon him, his property, both moveable and immoveable, will be liable to be sold in satisfaction of the demand, and that should the proceeds of such sale not cover the demand, he himself will be liable to be imprisoned in the civil jail.

Mode of service of notice.

III. The notice shall be served personally if possible. If it cannot be served personally, it shall be left with an adult male member of the defaulter's family. If there be no adult male member, it shall be affixed to the door of the defaulter's usual place of residence. At the same time that the notice is served, attachment shall be made of all the said property, moveable and immoveable; but no proceeding under this Act shall be invalidated by reason of non-service or insufficient service of any such notice.

Power to remove names from defaulter's list.

IV. It shall be lawful for the defaulter, on whom the notice has been served, to appear in Court at any time within ten days after the service of such notice, and either by paying the amount of arrear and cost, or by proving, to the satisfaction of the Court, that he is not liable on account of it, to show cause why his name should be struck out of the defaulter's list, and the attachment of his property be removed.

Attached property to be sold after ten days.

V. At the expiration of ten days from the service of such notice, if the defaulter's name is still on the list, and he shall still neglect to pay the amount due by him, the district or sub-divisional officer shall issue a warrant directing the nazir to sell by public auction, after notice of not less than ten days, the property attached.

Personal property to be sold in first instance.

VI. Personal property alone shall, in the first instance, be sold, and if the proceeds of the sale be insufficient to liquidate the debt with costs, any real property of which the defaulter may be possessed may then be sold.

Sales to be for cash at time of sale.

VII. Purchasers shall be required to pay at the time of sale the full amount of purchase-money in cash. If this is not done, the lot shall be resold at the risk of the first purchaser, and the district or sub-divisional officer shall recover the difference, if any, from the first purchaser as an arrear of assessment under these Rules.

Power to arrest defaulter.

VIII. Whenever the proceeds of the sale of the defaulter's property, moveable and immoveable, are insufficient to cover the demand as reported under section II, the district or sub-divisional officer may, by a warrant under his hand, order the nazir to arrest such defaulter, and imprison him in the civil jail, and such nazir shall so arrest such defaulter and cause him to be lodged in the civil jail of the district.

Enquiry on means of defaulter to be held.

IX. Immediately after the sale of the defaulter's property, if the proceeds are insufficient to cover the arrear, an enquiry shall be held to ascertain whether the defaulter or any one on his behalf, has wilfully concealed or made away with any other property belonging to the said defaulter.

Penalty on fraudulent concealment.

X. If it shall be proved that the defaulter, or any one acting on his behalf, has fraudulently made away with, or concealed any portion of, the said defaulter's property, and the amount realized from the sale of the portion attached be not sufficient to liquidate the debt, the defaulter may be imprisoned in the civil jail for a period of two months, if the amount still due be less than Rupees 15, four months if it be more than Rupees 15 and less than Rupees 50, and six months in any other case.

Imprisonment where no fraud not to exceed 14 days.

XI. The imprisonment under section VIII shall, under no circumstances, continue for a longer period than fourteen days. At the expiration of that time the defaulter shall be released, unless in the interim an order has been passed under section X. Such release shall not be a bar to the issue of an order for arrest and imprisonment under section X.

XII. Any person who has once been imprisoned under section X shall not again be liable to imprisonment for the same debt; but any property he may acquire shall be liable to attachment and sale in liquidation of it: provided that no such attachment shall be issued after the lapse of three years from the time when such person shall have been discharged from imprisonment.

Future property to be liable.

XIII. During the period that the defaulter may be in jail, the collecting officer, at whose instance he has been confined, shall pay to the jailor subsistance allowance for the support of the prisoner at a rate to be fixed by the district or sub-divisional officer; such rate not to exceed four annas, nor to be less than two annas per diem.

Subsistence allowance to be paid.

XIV. All fines or awards under the Rules for the Revenue Administration of Assam may be recovered in the same way as if it were an arrear of assessment under this Act due on the date the order therefor may have been passed.

Recovery of fines.

XV. All cases under this Act shall be received and decided by the Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner in charge of the subdivision, or may be referred by them for trial to any other Assistant Commissioner.

Jurisdiction.

XVI. An appeal from all decisions and orders of the Assistant Commissioner shall be allowed to the Deputy Commissioner, and to the Commissioner from all decisions and orders of the Deputy Commissioner, other than those passed on appeal; provided such appeal be made in the former case within fifteen days, and in the latter case within thirty days, from the date of the decision or order appealed against.

Appeal from decisions.

XVII. The Commissioner, however, at any time may call for and revise any proceedings of a subordinate court, whether original or appellate, and may pass any order in the matter that it would have been lawful for him to pass had an appeal been preferred to him.

Commissioner may revise proceedings.

XVIII. Nothing contained in this Act shall be held to apply to suits between lakhirajdars and other private land-owners and their tenants in Assam. or to the recovery of any arrear of assessment due by a Government tenant, unless proceedings be instituted within three months of the date on which such arrear becomes due.

Act not to apply to private demands.

XIX. Every person desiring to have his name entered in the revenue register for any plot or plots of land paying revenue direct to Government then standing in the name of some other person, shall file, in the office of the Assistant Commissioner, a petition, describing the position and boundaries of the land, and its area and number in Register (A) kept by him; he shall also file the pottah under which he claims such lands. The petitioner shall in such petition state the title by which he claims to have the land transferred to his name; and the person in whose name the land is already registered must also, by petition, give his consent to the transfer, and if any value has been paid shall mention receipt of such sum.

Petition for mutation of names.

XX. If the petition alleges the land to have been acquired by purchase, or by virtue of a document, copy of such document shall be filed with the petition.

Copies of documents to be filed.

XXI. On receipt of the petition the court shall cause the same to be entered in a register, and after comparing the description of the land as given in the petition with the settlement records, the court shall ascertain, in such manner as may seem fit, whether the applicant is in actual possession of the land mentioned in the petition, and shall issue a notice in a form to be appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, requiring every one desirous of opposing the mutation to appear, within fifteen days, and oppose the said mutation. Such notice shall be published by affixing the same on some conspicuous part of the said land.

Procedure on petition.

XXII. If within the period specified in the notice any adverse claim to the land is put forward, the court shall take the same into consideration; and if it shall appear that any question is raised which requires, or will require, a decision in a civil suit, the application for transfer shall be disallowed, and the parties referred to the civil court.

Power to transmit for decision of Civil Court.

XXIII. If no objection is raised within the period specified, or if any objection has been so preferred and has not been referred to the Civil Court under the preceding rule, the court may take such evidence or make such enquiries as it may deem necessary, to ascertain the validity of any document on which the claim is founded; or if the applicant claim to succeed as heir of the former occupant, may call for proof of the alleged heirship and then pass such orders as it may deem proper either for allowing or disallowing the transfer.

Procedure, if no opposition.

XXIV. When a pottahdar dies, the mouzadar shall not, without the authority of the Assistant Commissioner, transfer the holding to the heirs of the deceased. No transfer shall be legal without a decree of a civil court or an order made under the provisions of this Act; and until such decree or order in respect to any land shall have been communicated to the mouzahdar, he shall continue to measure such land in the name of the former occupier, recording at the time of measurement the name of the person in actual possession, and every person who shall be so in occupation shall be responsible for the payment of the assessment in the same manner as if he or they were the rightful successors of the late former occupier, and su h record by the mouzahdar shall be primâ facie evidence of his being so in occupation.

Mouzahdars not to transfer without authority.

XXV. When any pottahdar removes out of a mouzah without resigning his land by written notice to the district or sub-divisional officer, he shall remain liable to the payment of the assessment of the said holding, unless and until such land shall be transferred to the name of some other person.

Pottahdar who does not resign to remain liable.

When residence of pottahdar unknown, report to be made.

XXVI. Whenever the residence of any pottahdar is unknown to the mouzadar, and when any pottahdar dies and leaves no heirs, or no heirs known to the mouzadar, the mouzadar shall make a report to the sub-divisional officer for his order thereupon.

Remission of revenue.

XXVII. All applications for remission of revenue shall be made in the first instance by the ryot to the mouzadar, who, after personally enquiring into the truth of the alleged grounds for remission, shall forward the application with his report thereon to the Deputy Commissioner, and such Commissioner may, if he think fit, after due and strict enquiry, transmit such application and report with a full explanation for the approval and sanction of the Commissioner. In the case of applications for remission of revenue on land within a sub-division, the application should be submitted by the mouzadar to the Deputy Commissioner through the Assistant Commissioner. Applications for remission on account of wrong measurements or other causes unconnected with the condition of the crop shall be preferred within ten days of the pottah being given or tendered to the ryot.

Mouzadar to make reports.

XXVII. Every mouzadar shall, within one month after his appointment, make a report in writing to the Deputy Commissioner, and therein state the documents which he shall have received from his predecessor or otherwise.

Disobedience of orders by mouzadars.

XXIX. Every mouzadar who wilfully neglects his duty or wilfully disobeys any order of his superiors shall, in any case not coming within the provisions of the Indian Penal Code, be liable to fine not exceeding two hundred Rupees, or suspension, or dismissal, at the discretion of the Deputy Commissioner.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE procedure for the recovery of arrears of revenue in the Province of Assam has been regulated by certain rules of practice, which have been in force for many years, though without the sanction of the legislature. Under the light assessments which prevailed in Assam recourse to punitive measures had seldom been found necessary, the Government revenue being generally paid in with punctuality. In the rules on the subject which have recently been framed by the revenue authorities, procedure by attachment of the property and arrest of the person of the defaulter have been prescribed by the local authorities, and it is essential to give the rules validity in such matters that they should have the force of law.

The object of the present Bill is to legalize the procedure to be observed where default occurs in the payment of the Government demand; and advantage has been taken of the introduction of the Bill to add certain provisions for the better regulation of transfers of holdings occupied by ryots paying directly to Government.

Asst. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal, Legislative Department.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 4th February 1871, and was referred to a Select Committee with instructions to report within one month :—

A Bill to make better provision for the recovery of certain fines.

Preamble.

WHEREAS difficulty has been experienced in the recovery of fines imposed under the authority of certain Acts heretofore passed; It is enacted as follows :—

Recovery of fines imposed under certain Acts.

The provisions of sections LXIII, LXIV, LXV, LXVI, LXVII, LXVIII, LXIX, and LXX of the Indian Penal Code, and of section LXI of the Code of Criminal Procedure, shall apply to all fines to be hereafter imposed under the authority of any Act passed by the Governor General of India in Council before the passing of the Indian Councils' Act, or under the authority of any Act passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council before the 1st day of June 1867.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

BY section 4 of Act V. of 1867 (B.C.) provision is made for the recovery of fines imposed under the authority of any Act passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council after the passing of that Act. But no provision exists for the recovery of fines imposed under the authority of any Act passed by the same authority previously to the passing of Act V. of 1867.

As there are amongst the Acts passed by the Governor General of India in Council before the passing of the Indian Councils' Act, and by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council prior to the passing of Act V. of 1867, several enactments which do not sufficiently provide for the recovery of fines imposed under their authority, the object of this Bill is to supply that defect.

RIVERS THOMPSON,
Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 2nd February 1871.—The following Notification of the Government of India, in the Home Department, is republished for general information :—

PUBLIC.

Fort William, the 26th January 1871.

No. 478.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to direct the publication of the following advertisement in substitution of the one published under Notification No. 145, dated the 11th January 1870 :—

ADVERTISEMENT.

1. The Government of India, after communication with various Agricultural and Horticultural Societies in India, and with persons interested in the subject, has arrived at the conclusion that the only real obstacle to the development of an extensive trade in the fibre of Rhea or China-grass is the want of suitable machinery for separating the fibre and bark from the stem, and the fibre from the bark, the cost of effecting such separation by manual labour being great.

2. The demand for the fibre is now large, and, no doubt, might be extended with reduced prices, and there is a practically unlimited extent of country in India where the plant could be grown.

3. The requirements of the case appear to be some machinery or process capable of producing, with the aid of animal, water, or steam-power, a ton of fibre of a quality which shall average in value not less than £50 per ton in the English market, at a total cost—all processes of manufacture and allowance for wear and tear included—of not more than £15 per ton. The said processes are to be understood to include all the operations performed, after the cutting and transport of the plant to the place of manufacture to the completion of the manufacture of fibre of the quality above described. The machinery must be simple, strong, durable, and cheap, and should be suited for erection at or near the plantations, as the refuse is very useful as manure for continued cultivation.

4. To stimulate the invention or adaptation of such machinery or process, the Government of India hereby offers a prize of £5,000 for the machine and process that best fulfils all the requirements named above.

5. Rewards of moderate amount will be given for really meritorious inventions, even though failing to meet entirely all the conditions named.

6. Owing to the delay that has taken place in maturing the preliminary arrangements, the Government of India has decided that the competition will not be held until the 1st April 1872, thus affording a much longer time than was originally intended for the preparation of machines and their transport to the locality appointed for the competition. The Government Rhea Plantation at Saharunpore, in the North-Western Provinces, has been fixed as the place where the public competition will be held, and the Government of India will provide one or more small steam-engines to work the machines during the public competition.

7. All machinery, &c., intended for trial must be brought by the competitors at their own charge to the Saharunpore Rhea Plantation, and kept ready before the 1st April 1872, to be there worked under their own supervision, or under that of their representatives, for a sufficient length of time to enable the judges appointed by Government to determine whether all the conditions named have been complied with. The prize machine is to be transferred, if required, to Government at 5 per cent. above cost price ; the patent right in any such machine to be also transferred, if required, to Government, on the latter securing to the patentee a royalty of 5 per cent. on the cost price of all machines manufactured under the patent during its currency.

8. Arrangements have now been completed for the supply of dried Rhea stems to intending competitors, both in this country and in Europe, to enable them to form a correct idea of the nature of the plant which their machinery will be required to deal with. Persons in Europe desirous to obtain small supplies of dried Rhea stems for the above purpose, should apply to the Secretary of State for India. Intending competitors in this country, desirous of obtaining supplies of the article, must submit applications to the Secretary to the Government of India in the Home Department, in the Form A hereto annexed, prior to the 1st of March 1871 ; and those who are desirous of testing their machinery on the fresh Rhea at the Government Rhea Plantation at Saharunpore during the year 1871, must submit their applications to the same authority, in the Form B hereto annexed, prior to the 1st April 1871. The former will have to pay the expenses that may be incurred in packing and despatching the stems. The latter will have to provide all labor and motive power necessary for, and to pay all expenses connected with, their experiments : the fibre turned out by their machines during such experiments to become the property of Government.

9. To Government of Bengal, No. 418, dated 21st January 1871.
From ditto, No. 229, dated 23rd January 1871.
To Government of Madras (telegram), dated 24th January 1871.

RESOLUTION.—Ever since the introduction of the cultivation of the cinchona plant in this country, the Government of India has watched with the deepest interest the progress of the experiment, feeling convinced that its success would be fraught with the most beneficial results to the whole population of India. The advantages to be derived from the successful cultivation of cinchona cannot be over-estimated, as the object is to secure to the country at large the greatest medical boon that could be afforded to it,—that is, to place within the reach of the masses of the people, at the lowest possible rates, the only effective specific that science has yet discovered for the commonest of Indian diseases.

2. That the cinchona plant, C. succirubra, at any rate, can be grown to any extent in British Sikhim has now been indisputably established by the results that have already been achieved at the Government plantations. And the Governor General in Council fully believes that at little present cost, and with a certainty of considerable future revenue, forests of cinchona may be reared in Sikhim which, by furnishing large quantities of quinine, may hereafter prove a blessing not only to India, but to the civilized world.

3. Already the Government plantations in Sikhim yield a considerable supply of excellent bark; and year by year a rapid increase in this supply may be looked for; the Governor General in Council, therefore, thinks that the time has come for a preliminary decision as to how this supply can best be utilized. This view of the case is confirmed by a very interesting report submitted by Mr. Clarke in regard to the experimental manufacture of amorphous quinine at Da jeeling. His Excellency in Council is of opinion that the best mode of settling the many doubtful points connected with this important question is the appointment of a Commission to enquire into and report on the whole subject; and in communication with His Excellency the Governor of Madras and His Honor the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, he is pleased to nominate the gentlemen named in the margin to form the proposed Commission.

Dr. Campbell Brown, President.
Mr. Clarke,
Dr Simpson,
Mr Broughton } Members.

4. His Excellency in Council is well aware that any conclusions that may now be arrived at will doubtless need considerable modifications, when a larger experience affords better data than at present exist. He is at the same time of opinion that it is essential to adopt without delay some regular system, the best that can be devised in the existing state of our knowledge, for dealing with the yearly increasing produce of the cinchona plantations.

5. The Commission will have to consider, among other matters, whether on general as well as economical grounds, it would be best—

(1) to send home the whole of the bark which bears a marketable value; or

(2) to extract by a single process all soluble matter from the bark, and send home the gross proceeds of the first precipitation; or

(3) to proceed further with the manufacture in India; and, if so, how much further; whether (a) only so far as is necessary to separate the several alkaloids from the resin, coloring matter, and other foreign elements which the first precipitate will contain; or (b) as far as the manufacture of the pure sulphate of quinine?

6. Should the Commission recommend the second or third alternative, they will have to consider what processes will, under all the circumstances of the case, be most likely to prove appropriate.

7. A certain percentage of the total yearly yield of bark will, owing to its extreme poverty in alkaloids, always be unfit for the home market; and it will be for the Commission to decide how this bark may be most profitably dealt with here.

8. It is also believed that a valuable febrifuge can be readily extracted from the leaf of some species of the cinchona; and this point also, as well as many other kindred questions which will suggest themselves as the enquiry proceeds, will appropriately form subjects for the consideration of the Commission, whose sittings should be in the first instance in Calcutta, but who may later, if it be considered desirable, be deputed to visit the plantations themselves.

9. The Commission will carry on their enquiries under the orders of the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal, and will submit their final report to that authority.

ORDERED, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Government of Bengal for information and guidance.

Circular Orders by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Criminal Authorities, (No. 1, dated Calcutta, the 11th January 1871.)

(CRIMINAL SIDE.)

THE Court directs the discontinuance, in the Office of the Magistrate of the District, of the general register of warrants prescribed by the late Sudder Court's Circular of the 15th May 1835, No. 167, and the High Court's Circular, dated 1st October 1866, No. 11.

2. Each Criminal Court is enjoined to keep up its own register and see that its own warrants are duly returned. The form in which the register shall be maintained is that laid down in Circular Order No. 167, dated 15th May 1835, omitting column 6 as required by Circular Order No. 11, dated 1st October 1866, and the manner in which entries are to be made will be found described in the Rules appended to that form.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Sessions Judges, Lower and Eastern Regulation Provinces,—(No. 2, dated Calcutta, the 18th January 1871.)

IT having been brought to the notice of the High Court that warrants for the realization of fines imposed by Courts of Session are sometimes issued from the Magistrate's Office, the attention of all Sessions Judges is called to Section 61 of the Code of Criminal Procedure (Act VIII. of 1869), which provides for such warrants being issued by the Sessions Judge alone,—Section 384 of the Code of Criminal Procedure having been modified.

2. As, however, the present system of issuing one warrant for the carrying into effect a twfold sentence,* one portion of which has to be given effect to by one officer and the other portion by another, has been found to be inconvenient and to lead to difficulties, Sessions Judges are directed in future, in all such cases, to cause to be issued a warrant in duplicate fully filled up, one copy being forwarded to each of the two officers, viz., the Magistrate and the Officer in charge of the Jail, whose duty it is to see the warrant carried into effect. That portion, however, of the sentence with which the officer to whom the particular copy is addressed has no concern, will first be written in and then scored through with red ink, as an intimation to him that no action on his part is necessary in regard to such portion. If at any time before the expiration of the alternative sentence the whole fine shall be levied, the Magistrate shall report the fact to the officer in charge of the Jail and direct the discharge of the prisoner; or, if a portion of the fine shall be levied within such time as aforesaid, the Magistrate shall forthwith report the fact for the orders of the Sessions Judge.

* Vide Forms 6, 7 and 8, also 10 and 11, appended to Circular Order No. 6, dated 23rd February 1870.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal,—(No. 1, dated Calcutta, the 17th January 1871.)

(CIVIL SIDE.)

WITH reference to Court's letter No. 3816, dated 17th December 1870, to the Superintendent of Stationery, copy of which was forwarded by their Circular Memorandum No. 7 to all Zillah Judges and District Magistrates, the following corrigendum is circulated for information and guidance of those officers:—

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Zillah Judges and Judicial Commissioners,—(No. 2, dated Calcutta, the 10th January 1871.)

THE Court directs that all orders by all Civil Courts for the attachment of estates and shares of estates for the recovery of arrears or demands of the descriptions mentioned under Section 5, Act XI. of 1859, shall be immediately notified to the Collector of the District within which such estates or shares of estates are situated.

From F. B. PEACOCK, ESQ., Registrar of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, to all Civil Authorities in the Lower Provinces,—(No. 3, dated Calcutta, the 17th January 1871.)

THE attention of all Civil Courts subordinate to the High Court is drawn to the provisions of section 30 of the Court Fees' Act (VII.) of 1870, prohibiting the use, in any proceeding, of any document requiring a stamp under that Act until such stamp has been cancelled, and prescribing the mode in which cancellation is to be effected.

2. The Civil Courts subordinate to the High Court are at the same time directed, at the suggestion of the Government of India, to cause the labels affixed to documents issued by them and liable to a fee under the Act to be cancelled at the time that they are affixed, such a course being calculated to protect the revenue and prevent all evasions of the law.

Rules passed by the High Court for the prompt trial of undefended and other suits for arrears of rent in the Civil Courts under Act VIII. of 1869.

1. Every summons in any suit for arrears of rent not being a suit in which enhancement is sought, brought under the provisions of Act VIII. of 1869, B C., shall command the defendant to appear at the expiration of fourteen clear days after the service thereof.

2. Every such suit entered in the Register, as directed by section 42, shall be marked thus—"Rent Suit," "Baki Kházánár Mokuddama," "Baki Malguzari."

3. Immediately on the return of the summons in any such "Rent Suit," the suit shall be entered in a list of causes in form annexed, to be stuck up in the Court House, specifying the day for hearing, which shall be on the day fixed for the appearance of the defendant, or on the earliest day on which the Court shall sit after such day.

4. Each such suit shall be called on in its turn at the sitting of the Court and before suits of any other description upon the day for the hearing thereof; and in every case in which it shall be shown that the defendant has been duly served with the summons in proper time to enable him to appear and defend the suit, but the defendant does not, either in person or by any authorized agent or pleader, appear or make answer to the suit, the case shall be forthwith taken up and heard ex parte, unless in any particular case the Court, for special reasons to be recorded in the proceedings, shall think fit to order otherwise.

5. Provided, nevertheless, that no suit for arrears of rent shall be called on and tried ex parte when the summons shall not have been served at least fourteen clear days before the day o hearing.

6. When it shall appear that the summons has not been duly served, or that fourteen clear days have not elapsed from the date of the due service of the summons, the case shall stand over until a day to be fixed immediately after the expiration of fourteen clear days from the date of the due service of the summons.

7. In cases where the defendant appears and makes answer or desires to contest the claim, the case may either be taken up and tried at once, if it appear to be likely to be a short one, or may be placed in the ordinary list of defended causes, and come on in its turn, if such latter course appear to the Judge to be expedient with reference to the state of his file or the convenience of the parties.

The 27th January 1871.

"Mr. T. B. Tracy having requested that the General Meeting will decide whether he is liable under Article I of the Rules to pay subscription while on furlough, the Managers submit the particulars of his case.

"Mr. Tracy, vacating his appointment, proceeded on furlough on the 10th of January 1868. He was then in the receipt of a furlough allowance of £500 per annum on which no Fund subscriptions were exacted.

"The new Furlough Rules came into operation from 1st July 1868, and he had the option given him by Government of electing whether the remainder of his furlough should be taken under the new Rules or the old. He elected the new Rules, because the moiety of his average salary for the three years previous to his taking leave amounted to £514-1-6 per annum, and accordingly on his return to India he was informed that subscription was due under Article 1 of the Rules from 1st July 1868, the date of his accepting the new Rules, to the date of his return, 17th December 1869, and the sum he was called upon to pay was Rs. 315.

"Mr. Tracy allows that he was permitted to draw the equivalent of his average salary for the three years preceding his departure on furlough, but urges that as he held no appointment, he cannot properly be said to have drawn salary while on leave within the meaning of Rule 1.

"The Managers are of opinion that the Rule covers his case."

Proposed by Mr. Wilson, seconded by Mr. Westland, that the accounts be passed, and the Managers' proceedings in Mr. Tracy's case be confirmed.

Carried unanimously.

Moved by Mr. Westland, seconded by Mr. Wilson, that the following gentlemen be elected Managers for the ensuing year, 1871:—

V. H. Schalch, Esq. | A. M. Monteath, Esq.
The Hon'ble A. Eden. | H. Beverley, Esq.

W. M. Souttar, Esq.

Carried unanimously.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Chairman.

Article VIII has been amended as follows:—

FORMER RULE.

"First.—Subscribers, who may hereafter retire from the service on annuities, wishing to secure to their widows and children the full benefits of the Fund, must, on retirement, make up the amount of their subscriptions with interest to Rs. 25,000, and must also continue their contributions at the same rates on their annuities as those levied from subscribers in the service on their allowances, and under the same conditions in regard to minimum payments and liability to increase or decrease of rates; an option being allowed to each subscriber of paying up once for all, either at the time of resigning the service or at any subsequent period, the full value of his contributions, according to the Tables of Mortality, which, on the advice of an Actuary, may be adopted by the Managers. This commutation will be calculated at 5 per cent. in the following manner: ordinary subscriptions, on the life of the subscriber alone, additional subscriptions on the joint lives of husband and wife, and extra contributions for children on the joint lives of father and child. But such settlement will be open to re-adjustment, if the necessities of the Fund should be found to require an enhanced rate of subscription, and every retired subscriber will also be liable to pay in the same manner for each child afterwards born, and, in case of subsequent marriage, the additional premium as a married subscriber."

"Second.—But subscribers hereafter so retiring from the service may, at their option, by making up the amount of their subscriptions with interest either to Rs. 12,500, or to Rs. 6,250, and by contributing or compounding for their contributions at the same rates on their annuities as those levied from subscribers in the service on their allowances, secure to their families, on the same conditions as above, in the former case one-half, and in the latter one-quarter of the amount of pensions and other allowances granted to the family of a subscriber dying in the service, or of an annuitant who has made up on retirement the full amount of Rs. 25,000."

AMENDED RULE.

"First.—Subscribers, who may hereafter retire from the service on annuities, wishing to secure to their widows and children the full benefits of the Fund, must, on retirement, make up the amount of their subscriptions with interest to Rs. 25,000, and must also continue their contributions on their annuities at half the rates levied from subscribers in the service on their allowances, and under the same conditions in regard to minimum payments and liability to increase or decrease of rates; an option being allowed to each subscriber of paying up once for all, either at the time of resigning the service or at any subsequent period, the half value of his contributions, according to the Tables of Mortality, which, on the advice of an Actuary, may be adopted by the Managers. This commutation will be calculated at 5 per cent. in the following manner, the total being reduced thereafter by one-half: ordinary subscriptions on the life of the subscriber alone, additional subscriptions on the joint lives of husband and wife, and extra contributions for children on the joint lives of father and child. But such settlement will be open to re-adjustment, if the necessities of the Fund should be found to require an enhanced rate of subscription, and every retired subscriber will also be liable to pay in the same manner for each child afterwards born, and, in case of subsequent marriage, the additional premium as a married subscriber."

"Second.—But subscribers hereafter so retiring from the service may, at their option, by making up the amount of their subscriptions with interest either to Rs. 12,500 or to Rs. 6,250, and by continuing or compounding for their contributions on their annuities at half the rates levied from subscribers in the service on their allowances, secure to their families, on the same conditions as above, in the former case one-half and in the latter one-quarter of the amount of pensions and other allowances granted to the family of a subscriber dying in the service, or of an annuitant who has made up on retirement the full amount of Rs. 25,000."

"Third.—Provided that in the case of a subscriber marrying after retirement his contributions or commutation payment in lieu thereof shall, for his wife and for his children, the issue of such marriage, be taken at full rates."

"To Article XXX has been added the following additional paragraph :—

"Provided also that the Managers may continue the whole or any part of his pension to any son of a deceased subscriber, who, at any time subsequent to the 31st March 1868, may have attained or may attain to the age of 21 years, and who may be proved to their satisfaction to be wholly incapacitated from gaining his livelihood, such incapacity being produced by causes beyond his control, and being duly certified from time to time in such way as to the Managers may seem sufficient."

The widow of the late Mr. A. A. Roberts having applied for the continuance of her son Lawrence Henry's pension beyond the age of 21 years as provided for under Article 30 of the rules recently amended, the Managers have informed her that, subject to the confirmation of this meeting, they are willing to continue her son's pension, but that for the protection of the Fund it is necessary that she should submit in original the certificate of a Member of the Medical Board of the India Office, testifying to the inability of her son to earn his livelihood. A like certificate must be furnished every five years, while it will also be necessary for her to forward annually a certificate from her family physician of the continuance of the incapacity. Messrs. Coutts and Co. have received instructions to advance one quarter's pension in anticipation of the receipt of the certificate.

The Managers have received a similar application from Mrs. Craigie on behalf of her son Manson who attained his majority on the 18th November 1867, but as the rule expressly provides that only those sons of deceased subscribers, who came of age subsequent to 31st March 1868, are to be admitted to these new benefits, they have informed her that her son cannot claim anything further from the Fund.

The attention of annuitants has been called to the amended Article VIII of the rules, and a letter has been addressed to each annuitant who has compounded, informing him of the amount of commutation payment refundable, and requesting him to apply for the refund.

The amount to be refunded is £6,825-18 or Rs. 68,259. Mr. Brown calculated that the sum refundable would be Rs. 88,731.

This difference is mainly owing to the fact that the actuary assumed that all annuitants were in the receipt of the full annuity of £1,000.

A letter has also been addressed to annuitants who subscribe quarterly from their annuities, advising them of the reduced subscription payable in future, and informing them at what reduced rate a commutation may be affected.

The contributions from retired subscribers for the quarter ending 31st October amounted to Rs. 14,408. The future quarterly receipts will be Rs. 7,204 only.

The actuary calculated the loss by composition from annuitants to be Rs. 2,56,990. The detailed calculation in the Fund Office shows that the actual loss will be Rs. 2,34,323.

Mr. P. H. Egerton has under Article V of the rules of the Fund incurred a fine of Rs. 50 on account of his failure to report the birth of his son within the prescribed period of a month. Mr. Egerton urges that the omission was accidental, and that notice was given in good time to secure payment of the subscription. He has been informed that the reason assigned is in view of the stringency of the rule not sufficient to exempt him from the penalty.

Enquiry having been made whether, under the revised Article XXX, a son incapacitated from earning his livelihood would on his father's death be admitted to Fund benefits even though he were at that time over the age of 21, and had therefore never as a minor been an incumbent on the Fund, the Managers have decided that such cases are not within the rule. They are however desirous of having the rules amended so as to meet such cases. They will under Article XVII (18) of the rules advertise amendments of Articles IV and XXX as follow—

That to Article IV be added the words :—

"It shall be optional to a subscriber to continue his payments at ordinary or at widower rates as the case may be on account of any son who may on his attaining the age of 21 years be reported to the Managers to be wholly incapacitated by reason of infirmity from earning his livelihood. Such payments must be continued up to the date of the subscriber's decease, and the Managers must be satisfied that the infirmity was not produced by causes within the control of the invalid."

And that to Article XXX (31) be added the words :—

"Provided further that the Managers may, under similar conditions as to medical certificates as in the above case, admit to Fund benefits either in whole or in part the son of a subscriber even though such son shall have previously attained his majority, if he is wholly incapacitated from earning his livelihood, provided that subscriptions have been paid on his account under Article IV up to the date of his father's decease. Should the Managers decide to reject such an application for admission to Fund benefits, they shall refund to the legal representatives of the subscriber, but without interest, all subscriptions received on account of such incapacitated son from the close of his twenty-first year."

This rule, it is proposed, shall have effect from 1st January 1871.

The accounts of the past year, 1869-70, are submitted.

BENGAL CIVIL FUND OFFICE;
The 27th January 1871.

(667—1)

BANK OF BENGAL.

Report by the Directors of the Bank of Bengal for the Half-year ended 31*st December* 1870.

The Directors have the pleasure to submit to the Proprietors their usual periodical report on the Bank's transactions at Head Office and Branches.

The money market during the past half-year has been characterised by uninterrupted dulness and inactivity, the rates at which the Bank offered to discount remaining unchanged during the whole period. Meanwhile the nature and safety of the Bank's advances has had the special attention of the Board, and measures have been taken to restrict the discounts at Head Office and Branches within safe limits.

The Bank's operations for the past six months at Head Office and Branches show a clear profit of Rs. 6,81,259-9-5; from this, after making ample provision for all bad and doubtful debts, the Directors have declared a dividend at 5½ per cent. per annum free of Income Tax, and carried forward the balance of Rs. 5,935-14-2 to credit of Profit and Loss for the current half-year.

The Directors have the satisfaction of informing the Proprietors that the Branches continue to work satisfactorily.

Statement of the Affairs of the Bank of Bengal as at 31*st December* 1870.

RECOVERY OF LAND REVENUE IN ASSAM.

MR. RIVERS THOMPSON moved that the Bill to provide for the recovery of land revenue and the mutation of names in Assam be read in Council. He said that the Bill had been prepared from the rules which now regulated the procedure for the recovery of the land assessment in Assam, and they had been amended and revised by the Board of Revenue. The Bill provides that ample time shall be given to defaulters for the payment of their dues before procedure was taken against them on account of their default. If after the month's time allowed for paying in arrears the money had not been paid, measures could be taken by attachment and sale of the defaulter's property, movable and immovable, and then, if necessary, by the arrest and imprisonment of the defaulter for a period not exceeding fourteen days. Special provision had been made for the case of a fraudulent concealment of property, and there was also a section which provided that nothing in the Act should apply to suits between lakherajdars and other private land-owners and their tenants. The Bill simply provided for cases where Government ryots owing Government revenue were in the position of defaulters.

Certain sections in the Bill provided for the registration of holdings in cases of transfer either by sale or death, or from any other cause. This provision was intended to provide against cases of not unfrequent occurrence of persons transferring their rights to others who had no right to hold them.

There were a few sections at the end of the Bill relating to remissions of revenue and the punishment of mouzadars for negligence of duty or disobedience of orders, which it was deemed advisable to incorporate in the measure.

These rules were now in operation in Assam; and the fact was, as he had said before, that cases of default very seldom occurred, and recourse to any form of penal procedure very seldom became necessary. But as the procedure was connected with punishment, the imposition of fines and imprisonment, it had been thought advisable that they should be enforced under the authority of an Act of the Legislature.

BABOO JOTENDRO MOHUN TAGORE said he begged to draw attention to certain sections of the Bill which seemed to enunciate a principle which might be exercised very harshly towards defaulters. The Bill proposed to give a power to arrest defaulters after both their real and pesonal property had been sold for arrears of revenue, and then to incarcerate them for a period of fourteen days even where there was no fraudulent concealment of property. This, he thought, was too harsh a measure: after a man was sold out of his hearth and home, it was very hard to incarcerate him for fourteen days. It was true that by Act VIII. of 1869 of this Council certain powers were given in cases where ryots became defaulters: but if a ryot, by a verified application, pleaded insolvency, he was at once let off. Under this Bill, however, the ryot would have no means of getting off before the fourteenth day of his incarceration.

Mr. Schalch said, after what the hon'ble member opposite had observed, he would beg leave to state that, under the present law for the recovery of rents, there was given a power to arrest a defaulter previously to the attachment of his property, or subsequently. In the present case the concession was made that no arrest should be made until it was certified that the property, both movable and immovable, was insufficient to meet the demand. He was not present during the passing of the new rent law, having been in England at the time, and he was not therefore quite conversant with its provisions; but on looking over it he did not see any provision necessitating the immediate release of a defaulter on proof of his insolvency. No doubt if insolvency was proved, the fact would be taken into consideration, and he had no reason to suppose that greater harshness would be exercised towards defaulters in the recovery of revenue in Assam than elsewhere.

Baboo Jotendro Mohun Tagore said he would take leave to explain what he had meant as to the rule relating to the insolvency of a defaulter. The rule to which he referred was not in Act VIII. of 1869 of this Council; but it was a rule that he believed would be enforced in accordance with the procedure of Act VIII. of 1859, the Civil Procedure Code. The Bengal Act VIII. of 1869 enacted that what was not provided for in that procedure should be regulated according to the procedure prescribed by Act VIII. of 1859, and under that provision he thought a defaulter might be released on proof of his insolvency. Then as to the provision of the rent law giving power to arrest a defaulter before attachment of his property, he would submit that that was different from what the present Bill contemplated. The object of that provision evidently was to apply an additional pressure for payment on one who was possessed of property, whereas this Bill proposed to put a man in jail after reducing him to a state of absolute pauperism.

Mr. Rivers Thompson said that the observations that had been made would be duly considered by the select committee, to whom the Bill would be referred, when that particular section came under their consideration. In a province like Assam, where they had to deal with a large body of ryots, each paying a small amount, he thought it would not be advisable to introduce all the technicalities of a procedure applicable to a more advanced people, or to a complicated system of land tenure. If a ryot was in such a position that every thing of his had to be sold, the Government officers, in their own interests and in the interests of the public, were not likely to incarcerate him for fourteen days, because they would have to incur the expense of maintaining him in prison; and he (Mr. Thompson) thought we might safely leave a matter of this kind to the discretion of the local authorities. As he had said before, if there was really any thing harsh in the procedure proposed, he had no doubt the subject would meet with due consideration at the hands of the select committee.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a select committee consisting of Mr. Schalch, Baboo Digumber Mitter, and the mover Mr. Thompson, with instructions to report within six weeks.

RECOVERY OF FINES.

Moulvy Abdool Lutreef moved that the Bill to facilitate the recovery of certain fines imposed in Bengal be read in Council. In doing so he said he begged to state that as he has already explained the objects and reasons for the introduction of the measure, he would not detain the Council with any further observations on this occasion, with the exception of one or two words. In the first place, he thought that the same principle under which the provisions of sections 63 to 70 of the Indian Penal Code have been extended to all fines imposed under the authority of Acts passed by this Council after the 30th of May 1867, as provided for in Act V. of 1867, was equally applicable to fines imposed under the authority of Acts passed prior to that date; and he could not understand why there should be a difference between the two. What is good and necessary in the one case should undoubtedly be so in the other. And he did not see any objection to the provisions of the said sections of the Penal Code being made applicable to all fines imposed by Acts of this Council previously passed.

In the second place, he found that there had been great many discussions at the meetings of both the justices of the peace for the town of Calcutta and the municipal commissioners for the suburbs as to the total failure of the Act passed by this Council for the better regulation of slaughter-houses, and both those corporations have resolved upon addressing the Government with a view to an amendment of the said Act, so as to enable the authorities to enforce its provisions, which they at present were utterly unable to do. He was, however, of opinion that if the Bill, which he begged to propose, was passed, it would effectually remedy the defect in the Act in question, and there would be no necessity whatever for amending it.

With these remarks he begged to move that the Bill be read in Council.

Baboo Digumber Mitter said that the object of the present measure appeared to be to make fines, which under the existing law can only be enforced by sale of the movable property of the offender, commutable to imprisonment if the fine be not realized by the distress. He did not question that some of the existing provisions might have been found defective or might have failed in their object. If those laws required amendment, let them by all means be amended in due form after sufficient publication. But he respectfully objected to the punitive provisions of one Act being set aside, altered, or modified, without due regard being had to the nature of the offences which they were intended to meet. If such a course were adopted, there was no knowing what serious alterations might be made in the existing body of law without the public being at all aware of it.

MOULVY ABDOOL LUTEEF said he thought that if the Bill was referred to a select committee they would be in a position to consult all the Acts which would be affected by this Bill, and to see if there was anything in any of them which would not justify the extension of this Act. He thought that was a matter of detail which could very easily be done by the committee.

The motion was then agreed to, and the Bill referred to a select committee consisting of the Advocate-General, the Hon'ble Mr. Eden, and the mover Moulvy Abdool Luteef, with instructions to report within a month.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 11th instant.

The mean barometer, as likewise the dry and wet bulb thermometer means, are derived from the twenty-four hourly observations made during the day.

The dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants.—The figures in column 10 represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity.—The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1½ feet, and that of the anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground.—The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

NOTE.

Barometric Pressure.—The pressures in column 2 of the above table for all stations below 500 feet are reduced from those given in column 3 of the table on the previous page by adding the weight of a column of air of the corresponding temperatures given in column 17. For stations of above 500 feet elevation, the reduction is made by Dippe's tables as given in Guyot's "Meteorological and Physical Tables."

Temperature.—The temperatures in column 3 are reduced from those in column 17, on the preceding page, by adding 1° Fahr. for every 350 feet.

Wind Direction.—The mean wind direction and its comparative prevalence are calculated from the whole number of wind observations recorded during the half-month. The latter is given as a percentage of the whole number of observations. The mean direction is calculated in the usual way by Lambert's formula.

The above being all comparable, afford the data for constructing a meteorological chart for the half-month which shall shew the isobaric and isothermal lines, and the resultant wind directions, which last may be represented by arrows of varying length proportioned to the prevalence of the wind. To these may be added the rainfall from the previous tables.
